28 January 2025

Dear Fractal

As we embark on 2025, there is much to look forward to across the life sciences sector. Queensland continues to be at the forefront of innovation, collaboration, and commercialisation, addressing critical challenges in healthcare, sustainability, and technology. This year presents new opportunities to strengthen our industry, drive transformative solutions, and showcase the extraordinary talent within our community. At LSQ, we are committed to supporting your success through meaningful connections, impactful events, and strategic initiatives. Together, we look forward to making 2025 a year of growth and achievement for the life sciences sector.

Sector news

January 13-16 saw the 43rd Annual J.P. Morgan Healthcare Conference in San Francisco, where the world's foremost life science experts congregate to collaborate and discuss where the industry is headed while networking with their fellow life science innovators.

Some of the key trends our attending members have reported include the dominance of AI in discussions, liquid biopsy and genomics innovations, and the surge in life science investment from VCs and private equity firms.

We're excited to hear more stories and outcomes from all of our members who attended in the coming weeks.

New members

We are delighted to welcome YOUmanity to the LSQ member community.
