Life before SmartChat

USA Corp needed a scalable, cost-effective solution to deliver personalized, high-quality engagements with their clients.

USA Corporate Services wanted to improve their lead qualification process and ensure no potential client slipped through the cracks. With their team operating during standard business hours, they recognized a gap in engaging with international clients and entrepreneurs who often inquired outside of those times.

While automated solutions were an option, USA Corporate Services understood that bots couldn't provide the level of professionalism and trust required for their business. They needed a solution that offered real, human interactions to handle complex inquiries, screen leads effectively, and maintain their reputation as a reliable partner for business incorporation. The challenge was finding a scalable, cost-effective way to deliver personalized, high-quality engagements without overburdening their internal team.
