

MIGRANT PARTICIPATION RESEARCH HUB

Research on migrant representation is multi-dimensional, and it sits at the core of advocacy and policy-development. Our work to date includes reports and blog articles setting the ground for future exploration on barriers to participation in public life.

We are looking to connect with academic and practice researchers with an interest in exploring migrant participation in public life to collaborate on specific research projects as needed.

Researchers interested in joining our register of experts are invited to join our Migrant Participation Research Hub expert pool by emailing us at hello@socialequity.org.uk

The work developed by the Hub's members will inform advocacy efforts of the Migrant Participation Forum.
