COURSE CONTENT & ASSESSMENT

RSL's Subsidiary Diploma allows each learner to explore and develop a skill set unique to them. Whether they want to develop as a rock musician playing with others or start a career as a solo singer, this course has been designed to motivate and inspire learners to embark on a career in music.

Throughout the qualification you will study five units:

- Planning a Career in Music (Core): Learners will review their own skill set and explore possible career options in the music industry, creating their own career action plan.
- Rehearsal Skills and Live Music Performance (Exam): Learners will work to a given theme by the exam board in order to prepare a live performance to a public audience.

Examples of other modules:

- Music Event Management: Learners will explore business aspects of the music industry by planning and managing their own, public music event, liaising with professionals from within different sectors of the music industry.
- Auditioning for Music: Learners will research and practically prepare for a real-life audition in a music setting.
- Improving Instrumental Performance: Learners will develop and embark on their own practice plan based on a set of personal, performance specific goals.
