

The Fernandine walls are a part of history that embraces the city of Porto, in the north of Portugal. These medieval fortifications, topped by battlements, were completed during the reign of King D. Fernando. Inspired by these old fortifications, the Fernandine armchair is seen from the outside as a high wall that surrounds the seat. Two brass pieces stand out as cutouts that reenact the battlements, details that outline the structure and are also visible in the interior of the piece. Its perimeter is noble and brave, strong and safe, while the interior, with an elevated seat and a loose cushion, is as comfortable and charming as the warm welcoming of the people from Porto.
