

Dear NCR Atleos customers and partners,

I'm excited to share that, as of today, NCR Atleos is officially an independent company. Thank you for being a dedicated partner on this journey with us.

This marks the culmination of our work to separate NCR into two companies, each with a unique focus. The result of this process is NCR Atleos, focused on ATMs, and NCR Voyix, focused on digital commerce.

Our goal as NCR Atleos remains the same as it has for NCR's more than 130-year history – to make you successful. We will remain a leader in empowering banks and retailers to deliver best-in-class self-service experiences for consumers.

Going forward, we will be even more focused on our strengths as an ATM service provider, offering a comprehensive solution set so you can deliver positive outcomes to your customers and members. With our service-led approach, we will continue to provide unmatched scale and capabilities globally, offering you global remote and onsite field services, cutting-edge ATM software and a diverse hardware portfolio.

Your partnership and patience during the separation process is greatly appreciated. We look forward to deepening our valued relationship with you as we set out as our own company and focus even more strongly on our market and customers.

Sincerely,

Tim Oliver
Chief Executive Officer
NCR Atleos