Peter Coy

New York Times Opinion Economics Commentary

A deep analysis to today’s complex domestic and international economies

Biography

Peter Coy is a veteran business journalist. For over three decades he wrote for BusinessWeek and Bloomberg Businessweek, where he served as Telecommunications Editor, Technology Editor, Economics Editor, and Senior Writer.

Topics

Economics

World Economy

Artificial Intelligence

Future of Work
In his current post with The New York Times, Coy’s economics commentary enlightens and surprises, lending a fresh voice and deep analysis to the most complex domestic and international stories of our day.

His economics newsletter, which won a SABEW Best in Business Award in 2023, spans an eclectic breadth of topics. Covering inflation or innovation, network effects, AI, or the 2024 election, Coy is a seasoned guide amid rapid change and uncertainty.

A master of metaphor, his expertise lies not just in economics, but in how economists and those who cover them express the ideas that can shape both government policy and household financial decisions.

Coy holds a history degree from Cornell, and has appeared on C-SPAN, NPR, CNBC, and other major news networks.