As the new season unfolds, Re-united by Design brings together iconic makers and their defining works, exploring furniture not as isolated objects but as relationships; between form and function, past and present, maker and material. These distinctive designs reveal proportion, intention, and construction with fresh clarity. From Molteni's Emilie sofa to the architecturally sculpted Via Bernina table by Man of Parts, each piece balances comfort and craftsmanship, commanding attention while elevating the experience of space.

This season of the London Design Week, we invite you to discover our favourite makers, united by a shared design language and a commitment to creating truly iconic pieces that will shape 2026.

Cronos Standing Lamp : Heaps and Woods

Emile Sofa by Molteni & C

An expression of modular elegance, Emile by Christophe Delcourt is a dynamic sofa system designed to adapt to the evolving needs of contemporary living. Characterised by a sculptural silhouette, Emile features a refined backrest with fluid, shifting heights, creating a harmonious play of proportions within the space.

Inspired by Lucio Fontana's works, distinctive graphic marks trace its form, ensuring a striking presence from every perspective. Available in three different sizes, the handmade frame is available in brushed brass or brushed nickel finish, with a standard steel wire suspension.

The Linea armchair by Vincent Van Duysen is a seamless blend of heritage and modernity, embodying the refined aesthetic of the Molteni&C Collection. Designed with compact yet inviting proportions, it offers both stylistic continuity and exceptional versatility.

At its foundation, the Linea armchair features an iconic trumpet-shaped swivel base, an elegant nod to mid-century design, reinterpreted with contemporary fluidity. The sculptural form is further enhanced by a distinctive void in the backrest, a subtle yet impactful detail that lightens its visual presence while maintaining an enveloping sense of comfort.

Lead Time:	8 - 10 Weeks
Origin:	Italy
Price:	from £16,365 (exVAT)

Living Box was conceived as an independent item of furniture, usable in any room of the house, but mainly suitable for the living room. Despite its reduced size, it retains the rigour and monumentality of the building it derives from, accentuating its details by means of quality materials.

Living Box expands its repertoire with an enhanced storage solution: the introduction of sliding "Stripe" doors, similar to those found in Molteni&C Kitchen Dada Engineered kitchens. These doors, crafted with a wood frame and central glass, enclose the interior space, creating private sections while preserving the elegance of the design.

Via Bernina by Man of Parts

The Bernina Express, is one of Europe's most scenic train journeys. A storied Alpine route to St. Moritz which cuts through the Swiss Alps with precision, power, and striking elegance.

The table's architectural base recalls the engineered beauty of alpine viaducts, pairing sculptural form with structural ingenuity. Functional, refined, and built for everyday journeys, the Via Bernina is a table that connects people, much like the iron passage it's named for.

The Tollgard showrooms are treasure troves of international contemporary design. Founded by respected design duo Staffan & Monique Tollgard, the showrooms are a physical extension of their design philosophy and a strong belief that great design deserves to be seen. Born in Sweden and South Africa respectively, the partners in life and design share a nuanced understanding of culture and a love of story-telling through design.

Starting with a handful of brands that they were eager to share with the design community, the Tollgard showroom has quickly grown into a library of over 250 global brands, offering furniture, lighting and accessories.

Today they continue to curate a selection of exclusive brands from across the globe, introducing them to the London stage. From Italian artisans to South African sculptors, the Tollgard showrooms are a melting pot of cultures connected by one singular thread, the beauty of craft.

With three London showrooms, they aim to inspire and add value at every stage of a design journey: for their clients, for architects, for interior designers and design aficionados around the world.
