Our History

For more than 130 years, golfers have played on this stretch of Northumberland coast, looking out across the North Sea to Holy Island and Bamburgh Castle. The name Goswick is said to mean “goose farm” — which is why a goose flies on our club crest.

1889 On the evening of Friday 21 October, a meeting at the King’s Arms Hotel in Berwick-upon-Tweed considers “a scheme to organise a golf club” — and the club is born.

1890 A nine-hole course opens for play in April, on the links at Goswick.

1894 The course is extended to a full 18 holes.

1903 Two-time Open Champion Willie Park Junior inspects the links and suggests rearranging the holes. James Braid had already played an exhibition match here in 1901.

1914 The Great War brings hard times — more than a third of the club’s members serve on active duty.

1930 Five-time Open Champion James Braid is commissioned to lengthen and strengthen the course, with major revisions to 13 holes. His design remains largely intact today.

2008 Goswick hosts its first Regional Qualifying for The Open Championship, welcoming the R&A’s qualifiers back many times since.

> “One of the most naturally magnificent pieces of golfing ground that ever swam into the ken of the golfing explorer.”
