The 108 Chair

The 108 Chair was originally designed by Finn Juhl in 1955. At first glance, it may appear like any ordinary dining chair. However, upon closer inspection, surprising details such as angled side bars and sliding cross bars are revealed. These details add unexpected movement and dynamics to the chair's construction. The chair is available in oak, walnut, or black-painted finishes and can be upholstered with textile or leather.
