

BELETAGE, DESIGN: SEBASTIAN HERKNER

BELETAGE is typically Wittmann: harmonious proportions, discreet details, and sophisticated design. Versatility and generous dimensions give the sofas and elements of the series by Sebastian Herkner the freedom to make a striking impression within any space. Curved and geometric elements can be combined in countless variations. A seemingly floating metal frame effortlessly supports the voluminous upholstered elements, giving BELETAGE its distinctive silhouette.

“Beletage” is the historical term for the representative floor of a grand bourgeois home. Applied to the modern home, it could be described as the place we cherish most – for ourselves, for family, and for guests. Sebastian Herkner’s latest design for Wittmann is made precisely for such spaces. BELETAGE fulfills the longing for a classic, inviting sofa collection that offers an answer for virtually any interior and helps shape living spaces. Various elements can be configured into expansive seating landscapes through a wide range of creative combinations.

What’s exciting is that the designer doesn’t settle on a single form, but instead adds a chaise longue with a rounded backrest to the modular elements. This allows for freedom and flexibility in the final look of your personal BELETAGE version. For Wittmann, such formal extravagance is effortlessly realized – made possible by true craftsmanship. Fine details, such as the seam pattern on the front of the armrests, showcase a high level of upholstery expertise. Beyond the precision in fabric processing, as always, quality lies at the heart of the furniture: a pocket spring core in the frame ensures long-lasting comfort, while the seat cushions feature a carefully considered Polymousse structure. The upholstered elements rest on a delicate metal frame that follows the contour of the modules and, finished in bronze or high-gloss chrome, becomes a particularly aesthetic highlight.

„I see my products as companions. They should move with their owners and grow old with them,” says Sebastian Herkner. Indeed, BELETAGE is something you’ll never want to part with. Whether as a standalone sofa or a modular group of elements, BELETAGE strikes the perfect balance between elegant opulence and relaxing comfort – all within a global design language that is instantly understood across cultures.

„For me as a designer, direct exchange with the family and the team is essential – crucial to the work and the pursuit of a perfect product. In times of globalization and outsourcing, this directness brings calm and represents quality and honesty. Together with Wittmann, we create true interior treasures meant to be appreciated for generations to come.”
