

Between Bodies
Sylvia Wilson & Natalie Scholtz
7 March – 4 April 2026

Opening event with introduction to the artists and conversation on their studio residency
Saturday 7th March 3.30 - 5.30pm

Between Bodies is the first collaboration by Sylvia Wilson and Natalie Scholtz, two women of colour whose metaphysical portraits navigate identity, belonging and Australianness.

Sylvia Wilson, a First Nations Martu curator and visual artist, navigates the inherited weight of culture, Country, and continuity shaped through both disconnection and reclamation.

Natalie Scholtz, a migrant child of South African and Iranian parents, carries the legacies of diaspora, displacement, and cultural translation, continually negotiating what it means to call this place home.

These two West Australian contemporary women painters came together for a shared studio residency at cbOne Studios in January 2026. Alongside each other they confronted and unravelled their unsettled ideas of belonging through their art practices.

Their works meet in the in-between: in bodies that hold layered histories, in cultures that are both learned and lived, and in identities forged across multiple worlds. Through paint, gesture, and figuration, they assemble fragments of self and place, balancing the real and the imagined, the celebratory and the uncertain.

Here, Australianness is not a fixed category but a spirited, shifting state—something constructed through portrait, story, and encounter. The exhibition becomes both a questioning and a celebration: of home, of identity, of how we become and unbecome Australian in contemporary times.

Between Bodies presents recent works by each artist and new collaborative works where their portraits of each other shift into otherworldly visions.

In partnership with Martumili Artists.

This project is supported by CTIS Arts SNAP WA.

ARTISTS BIO: Sylvia Wilson

"I'm Sylvia Wilson, an emerging curator at Martumili Art Gallery. The first exhibition I curated was in 2021 with fellow artists Robina Willams and Corban Williams. Paper Wangka (Paper Story in Martu) exhibition unearthed paper artwork treasures from Martumili collection as a professional development project for us three emerging curators. Since then I have led the gallery team to curate and install a number of exhibitions including Ngapikaja (the loose translation thingamibobs) and Mikka (Bush foods). I also curated a show for Yaama ganu Gallery in NSW for this September 2023. I love working with spaces and amazing artwork. I love going through the process of selection and coming up with themes that tie the pieces together. I get so excited to see works the works we send to different galleries, stretched and hung on the walls in places like Darwin, Perth and Sydney."

- Sylvia Wilson

ARTISTS BIO: Natalie Scholtz

Natalie Scholtz is an artist working primarily in painting and drawing on canvas, paper and board. Her practice pulls on a personal-political narrative, delving into the intricate realm of the in-between, rooted in her experience growing up in Western Australia, raised by immigrant parents of Persian and South African heritage.

Working with mixed media, she navigates the ever-shifting landscape of race, gender, humanity and non-human entities. Her creations capture the messy, fleshy intricacies that lie within the fluid constructs of identity. Faces often blend and the boundary between subject and object become blurred. Her signature style, an intimate combination of the allegory, the real and the obscure, relies on social engagement between herself and her community to fuel conversation and inspire her practice.
