Communicate Design Intent

Specifications effectively convey the architect's design intent to all stakeholders, guiding General Contractors in accurately translating the vision into reality.

Ensure Compliance

They ensure that the project adheres to industry standards, building codes, and regulations, maintaining safety and legal integrity throughout the construction.

Protect the Architect

As legal documents, specifications can protect architects in litigation by clearly outlining design intent, materials, and required standards.

Document Progress

Specifications serve as a reference for tracking construction progress, helping to maintain accountability and identify potential issues early.

Define Quality Standards

They establish the quality standards expected for materials and workmanship, ensuring the project meets desired aesthetic and performance criteria.

Select Products

Specifications outline the specific products to be used, streamlining procurement and ensuring alignment with the architect's vision.

TownSteel offers specification writing services for architectural hardware, specifically under section 08 71 00. Partnering with us offers several key benefits:

True Open Specification

We provide a genuinely open specification, listing at least three products from competing manufacturers in each section. This approach fosters competitive bidding and ensures you have a range of options.

Standards Compliance

All products specified will meet the required grades set forth by the architect, supporting the overall goals of the project and ensuring quality.

Design Intent Alignment

We ensure that all specified products, including finishes and lever designs, align with the necessary design elements for the project, maintaining the intended aesthetic.

Opening Evaluation

Our team conducts a thorough evaluation of each opening to ensure compliance with building standards, fire codes, and warranty requirements, providing peace of mind throughout the process.

Our team of dedicated and knowledgeable industry experts is here to help with all of your specification needs!
