WHERE BUSINESS WORKS

FOSTERING CREATIVITY & INNOVATION FOR OVER A CENTURY

History has demonstrated that for generations, the Candler Building has adapted to meet the needs of different tenants. Originally housing the Coca-Cola company, the Candler Building set the foundation for the type of building to appear in cities in the 1900s. It housed the Exelon Headquarters, Firestone Tire and Rubber, and was the first official headquarters for the U.S. Social Security Office. Today, this ability is only strengthened as many leading Baltimore institutions continue to blaze trails in its halls.
