Omar Jennings & Mike Gardner

The Oracy Shift

Mike Gardner Omar Jennings

Omar and Mike reflect on the fascinating evolution from their school's focus on reading resulting in an intentional and powerful oracy approach. They explain the concept of 'Number Talks' and the use of Kagan structures to promote equity and support cognitive development. These pedagogical tools, structuring conversations in the classroom they found not only enhanced learning but also engagement.

Reflections:

1. How deeply integrated is your school's approach to oracy?
2. In what ways can a focus on oracy support EAL pupils and pupils from disadvantaged backgrounds?
3. What role does reflective practice play in your professional development and in supporting your colleagues? How do you create meaningful opportunities for teachers to reflect, collaborate, and grow together in your school community?
4. For teachers: What challenges do you face in building a dialogic space in the classroom?
5. For leaders: How do you support new teachers in creating these spaces for meaningful conversations?

1 Curriculum Conversations Reference Packs

The best curriculum conversations between senior and subject leaders focus on substance – what is being taught, why it matters, and how to make it more coherent for pupils.

Each subject pack, drawn from Huh: Curriculum Conversations Between Subject and Senior Leaders, includes five questions to prompt rich dialogue and three key documents to build senior leaders' understanding of each subject.

Visit Curriculum Conversations Packs here.

2 Five Steps

Too many pupils arrive in secondary school ready to learn, only to repeat work they've already mastered. These Five Steps help primary and secondary colleagues build genuine curriculum continuity, so that learning deepens rather than stalls at the KS2 to KS3 transition.

Visit 5 Steps here.

3 Subject Quotes

It can be hard to articulate why individual subjects matter without reaching for an intent statement. These quotes offer a more powerful starting point – sparking genuine conversation about the significance of each subject.

Schools using them are finding they energise curriculum discussions in ways that formal documentation rarely does.

Courses

You will find in the courses section of the website a selection of courses that were initially created for our sibling site Huh Academy and have now been brought onto Myatt & Co and included in the annual subscription cost.

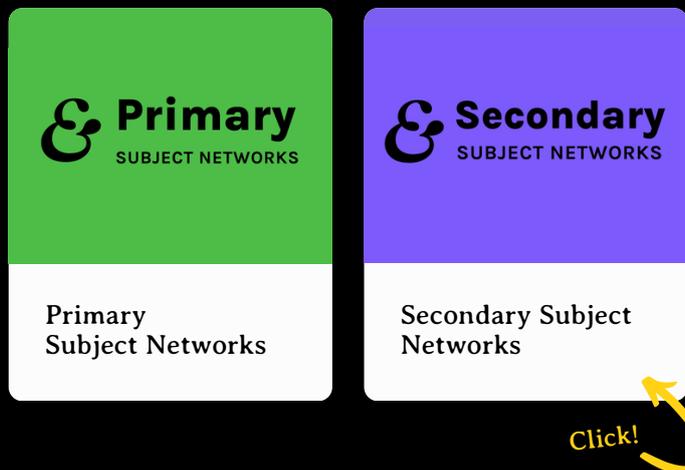

These courses cover a range of areas:

Four course cards are arranged in a 2x2 grid. Each card features a stylized white logo on the right side, consisting of a triangle pointing up and to the right, and a circle below it. The top-left card is blue and titled "Course Huh Curriculum Leaders". The top-right card is pink and titled "Course Huh Leadership Lobby", with a yellow arrow pointing to it from the word "Click!". The bottom-left card is dark blue and titled "Course Building Teams", with a yellow arrow pointing to it from the word "Click!". The bottom-right card is light blue and titled "Course Being Your Best Doing Your Best".

You can dip in and out of these.

The Subject Networks

These have been commissioned for both Primary and Secondary.

Each series explores a different theme:

- Diversity
- Quality texts
- New to a Subject
- Oracy
- ...and more

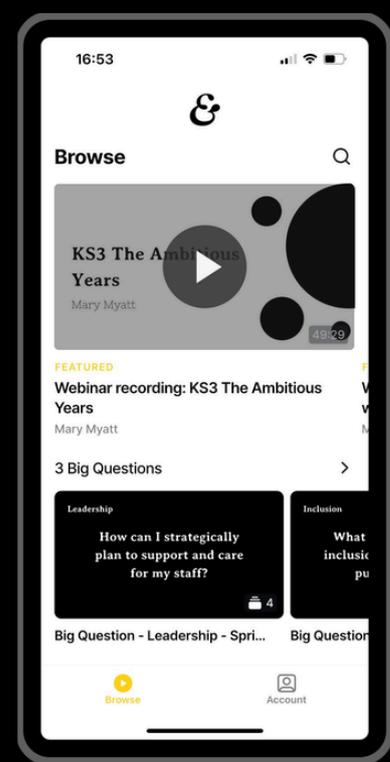

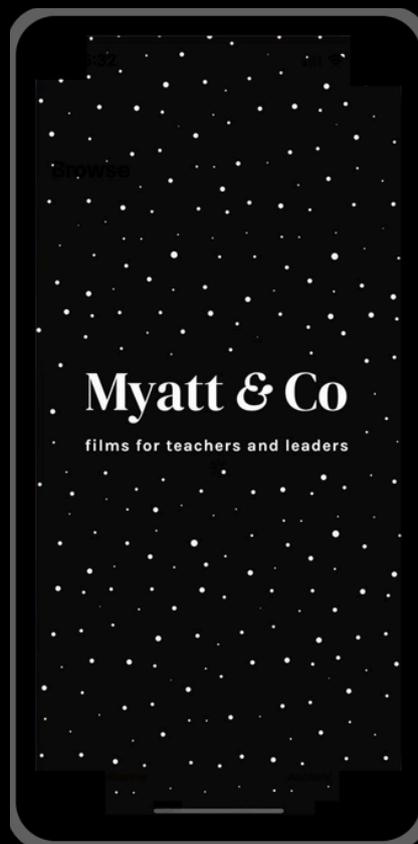

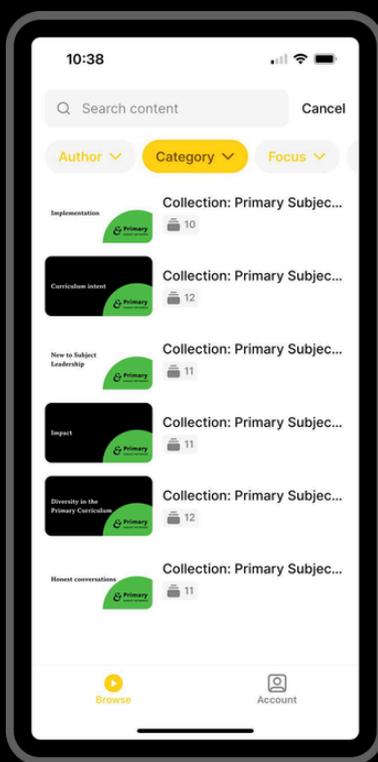

Take a look here to explore what is happening in the classrooms of colleagues.

The App

We have an app!!

Both for Android and Apple (iOS).

Download here!

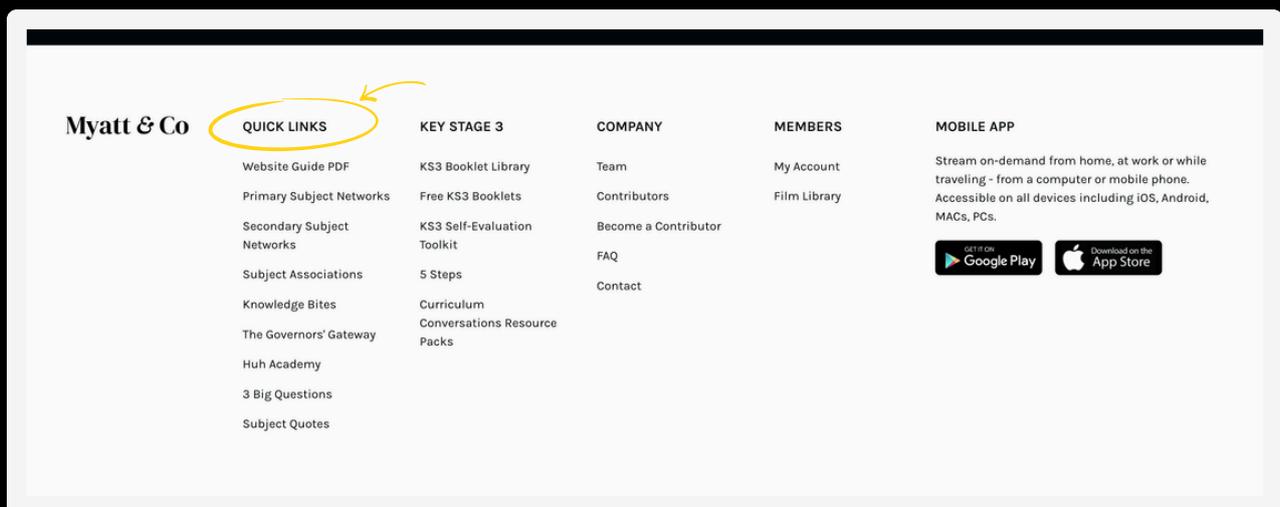

What we love is that you can listen to a recording as an audio, you can also come out of the app and the audio still plays.
