

PLAYMAKER OF THE WEEK

ALEX BROWN IS A WR WHO LOOKS LIKE A LINEBACKER, MOVES LIKE A RUNNING BACK WITH THE BALL IN HIS HANDS, AND HAS THE FINESSE OF A PURE ROUTE RUNNER. AT 6'3" 193, BROWN HAS THE SIZE TO BULLY DEFENDERS AND AS A MULTI-SPORT ATHLETE IN LACROSSE, HE IS MORE THAN HAPPY TO DO SO.

REPORT BY: CHANDLER PULLEN

ALEX BROWN
@ALEXBROWN110533
NCAA COMPARISON: AJ GREEN

HANDS

PLAYMAKER RECRUITING

RELEASE NUANCE

BODY CONTROL

ROUTE NUANCE

YAC

STRENGTHS

- Full sized, with athletic ability to play any spot
- Already a nuanced route runner
- Immediately transitions to a runner post catch
- Strong Vision in the open field
- Ability to high point and make touch catches
- Physical blocker

WEAKNESSES

- Doesn't always elevate for jump balls
- Limited route tree

Alex Brown 2024 v 2025

Brown makes his Utah 5A competition look like peewee on the field athletically, physically, and technically. Showing a mixed bag of releases, route tempo, and flashes of stemming, he is a crafty separator, even for his size. There is no fear of press as well, showing patience at the line and a good use of hands. Brown lacks no athleticism either, he has quick feet, great vision, and the speed to pull away from his competition. This is evident in his return numbers, averaging 35 yards per kick return and adding a 100 yard return TD this season. Brown has the high point ability and body control to make fades, back shoulders, and sideline catches look easy, establishing himself as a three tier threat. He is a joy to watch in the screen and run game as well. The pop and drive he puts into blocks looks personal and often leads to pancakes (18) on the perimeter. Brown doesn't have the historic production as his first year on varsity ended in 9 receptions for 67 yards (2nd on team in both) in a very strange season where he was on a 1 win team that saw 5 different QBs throw at least 17 passes. With more stability Brown was able to flourish, posting 1342 all purpose yards, 19.9 yards per catch, 8 total TDs, and helped lead the Skyline Eagles offense to the most total passing yards in 5A Utah.