PLAYMAKER RECRUITING

PLAYMAKER OF THE WEEK

JACKSON PATMIDES

@JACKSONPATMIDES

NCAA COMPARISON: RYAN JENSEN

JACKSON PATMIDES POSSESSES THE MENTALITY THAT MAKES OFFENSIVE LINE COACHES SMILE EAR TO EAR. THE 6'1" 300 POUND CENTER LOOKS TO IMPOSE HIS WILL ON THE DEFENSIVE LINE GAME AFTER GAME.

REPORT BY: CHANDLER PULLEN

USE OF HANDS

PLAYMAKER RECRUITING

PASS PRO

GAP

ZONE

ANCHOR

STRENGTHS

- Mean streak in the run game
- Vice grip hands
- Strong Anchor

WEAKNESSES

- Struggles in lateral moving schemes
- Inconsistent at reaching second level

2025 5A Utah Offensive Rankings

It's easy to get enticed by Patmides when you look at the measurables, heading into his senior year he has the "on paper" size requisites to contribute immediately at the next level. What makes Patmides even more exciting is how he uses this size to his advantage. The Utah Skyline center combines his size with a nasty mean streak and vice grip hands as a run blocker. He gets off the ball surprisingly quick for his size compared to his defensive counterparts and lands on his target consistently with heavy hands, leans into his man, and drives through the whistle looking to finish through the turf. Patmides was a force to be reckoned with, a big reason the Skyline Eagles ranked 10th in rushing, 5th in rushing TDs, and 3rd in points per game in Utah 5A competition. However, there is something coordinators looking into Patmides should keep in mind. While he dominated in gap/man schemes using double teams, base, and down blocks, there are some concerns when it comes to more lateral moving run games. Patmides is not an all world athlete at 6'1" 300, and he can struggle at overtaking lineman on reach blocks as well as reaching his landmarks at the second level. Though this is something that can definitely improve with collegiate level nutrition and strength & conditioning programs, it is easier said than done. This does not take away from his ability as a player though, as he is dominant at what he does best. When it comes to pass protection this is a guy that is hard to get through. Patmides combines a very good anchor with the ability to reset his hands in pass pro, without latching onto defenders. This allows him to keep landing his pop and moving his feet, effectively stalling the rush and keeping him ready for more work. He also moves his feet pretty well when dealing with speed, but like his feet in the run game, this will need to improve in order to be a fully scheme versatile player at the next level.

Report by: Chandler Pullen