

What is a ROSC?

A Recovery Orientated System of Care (ROSC) is a coordinated network of community-based services and supports that is person-centered and builds on the strengths and resilience of individuals, families, and communities to experience recovery and improved health, wellness, and quality of life for those with or at risk of substance use and/or co-occurring conditions. The central focus of ROSC is to create an infrastructure, or "systems of care", with the resources to effectively address the full range of substance use and/or co-occurring disorders within communities.

ROSC Councils are defined by IDHS/DBHR as local membership organizations that seek to improve the local ROSC and participate in the statewide ROSC Council. Their membership encompasses representatives from various community sectors, with the size and structure determined by each ROSC Council. While leadership and organizational approaches may differ, they typically involve leaders or "champions" who have lived or current experience, guiding and shaping the council's efforts. Membership may include but not limited to individuals that live in the community as well as local hospitals, primary care, mental health, law enforcement, local business owners, local government representatives and policy makers, people with lived experience and SUD intervention, treatment, prevention, and recovery support service providers.
