

OSHKI-WENJACK

OSHKI-PIMACHE-O-WIN
THE WENJACK EDUCATION INSTITUTE

Indigenous Birthworker— Labour Micro-credential Course

30 hours of online self-paced + community-based activities

What is the Indigenous Birthworker—Labour Micro-credential course?

In this course, participants will learn about Indigenous philosophies related to labour and birth and the Birthworker's role before, during, and after birth. Participants will learn about the signs, stages, movements, and the phases of labour, as well as complications and challenging variations in labour. Focus will be on providing physical, emotional, and mental support while also providing information throughout the birth and labour process. Participants will also explore approaches to trauma informed care and come to understand reproductive justice and birth rights for clients. This course includes Anishinaabemowin (Ojibwe) language training that aligns with the content to assist in communicating with the birthing parent and family.

The Indigenous Birthworker—Labour Course is the second course in the Indigenous Birthworker Microcredential series created based on identified community needs as reported in the Midwifery Summits of 2019 and 2023 held in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

Indigenous Birthworker—Labour

Indigenous Birthworker—Labour: Curriculum highlights

- Stages, signs, movements, and processes of labour
- Reproductive justice and birth rights for the client
- Challenges, complications, and special circumstances in labour
- Non-medical and medical pain interventions and comfort measures for labour
- Trauma informed approaches to care during labour
- Anishinaabemowin (Ojibwe) phrases and terminology relevant to the field

Requirements

Participants must purchase the required textbooks for this course.

Course Hours

The Indigenous Birthworker—Labour micro-credential course is a total of 30 hours. Participants will do the majority of their learning in an online, asynchronous format with additional community-based activities.

OSAP Eligible Micro-Credential

Apply at: <https://www.ontario.ca/page/osap-ontario-student-assistance-program>

What Does an Indigenous Birthworker Do?

The Indigenous Birthworker helps to educate, support, and advocate for new parents to help build healthy, happy families. An Indigenous Birthworker is similar to a Doula in their scope of practice (they are not a healthcare provider, but a support person) with the background, knowledge, and ability to support community members. Throughout their learning journey, the Birthworker course participants are prompted to reach out to community members and reflect on their own cultural traditions and teachings to honour traditional ways to better help and support community members. Indigenous Birthworkers can follow along with their clients' pregnancy and birth journeys both online/via phone and in-person to provide ongoing support and guidance and can be available as needed for questions and further support.

Other Indigenous Birthworker Micro-Credential Courses at Oshki-Wenjack:

Indigenous Birthworker—Pregnancy
Indigenous Birthworker—Postpartum
Indigenous Lactation Support

Are You Looking for a New Pathway?

Oshki-Wenjack provides college, university, trades and micro-credential programs to Nishnawbe Aski Nation and other learners in a safe, inclusive, supportive and culturally enriched learning environment. Most programs blend some in-person learning in Thunder Bay with more online learning in your home community. Personalized supports help improve student learning – and student success.

The Oshki-Wenjack campus is located in Thunder Bay, Ontario. The campus includes a cultural room, kitchen amenities, a computer lab and a student lounge. It is centrally located in the downtown south core Fort William Business District and is close to bus transportation.

For information, please contact our Recruitment Office:

Toll Free: 1-866-636-7454 | Phone: 1-807-626-1880 | recruitment@oshki.ca

oshki.ca

