

JAMES MURPHY

Corporate Security Advisors
Chief Operations Officer, Partner

A highly accomplished security executive and operations leader with over 40 years of experience, Jim Murphy brings unmatched depth across physical security, investigations, enterprise risk, and crisis management. As CSA's Chief Operations Officer and Partner, Jim drives the firm's operational strategy, advisor enablement, and client delivery model—ensuring CSA scales with excellence and continues to exceed expectations in a rapidly evolving threat landscape.

EXPERIENCE

Jim has led transformative change across Fortune 500 companies, global manufacturers, and regulated industries. He is known for modernizing legacy security programs into high-performing, business-aligned functions that proactively protect people, assets, and operations.

Prior to joining CSA, Jim held senior security roles at PG&E, Kimberly-Clark, Merck, Lexmark, and Scholastic. His leadership spanned physical security, executive protection, workplace violence prevention, compliance readiness, and cross-border investigations.

A former FBI Special Agent and trusted advisor to executive leadership teams, Jim has consistently integrated security strategy into broader business objectives. At Kimberly-Clark, he served as Vice President of Global Security and reclaimed over $225 million through innovative anti-fraud and product diversion programs. He has worked extensively in high-stakes, high-regulation environments—bringing deep experience in pharmaceuticals, public utilities, government, and consumer goods.

As COO, Jim applies a sharp operational lens to CSA's consulting delivery—ensuring scalable processes, measurable impact, and high-trust partnerships across every engagement.

Jim holds a JD from Widener University School of Law and a BS in Accounting from the University of Scranton.
