From the State President

Mr Duncan Anderson

National

The leadership of the National President has sharpened the focus of the role of RSL Australia in the fabric of the Returned and Services League. I make this observation as it has meaningful impact on how RSL WA, our Sub-Branches and members approach our various obligations.

Within the federation, support to veterans, the policy framework and key levers (funding) are the responsibility of the Federal Government. States are (or should be) more focussed on service delivery. Aligned with this is RSL Australia's central role as big 'A' advocacy. What this consists of is representing the interests of veterans and their families to the Federal Government. This comes in many forms and includes evidence and papers to Senate Estimates, influence in the halls of Parliament and within key agencies such as the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Enabling this key function are key functions such as policy development and media and communications. Thus, RSL Australia holds a coordination role with the 'members'; RSL WA is a member of RSL Australia.

State

The national context is critical when considering the investment made into the Indian Ocean Defence and Security Conference (IODS). RSL Australia, Legacy Australia, RSL WA and Legacy WA partnered to present a united approach to Defence Industry, Government and other key stakeholders from Australia and around the world. The problem faced by IODS is one of National Defence. This has been outlined in the recently released National Defence Strategy. From an RSL perspective, central to the challenge of National Defence was the question posed to delegates 'how do we unlock the latent capacity of 580,000 veterans across Australia?'. In practice at IODS this involved RSL Australia engaging in policy discussions, while RSL WA directly engaged with stakeholders as an exhibitor.

Key services of RSL WA, including RSL Active and Workforce Connect, were on display. Workforce Connect is our emerging employment and transition program. The program provides a tangible avenue for veterans and their families to connect with employers. In this instance employers were predominately in the Defence Industry. RSL Active continues to go from strength to strength, providing clear purpose and connection for veterans and family members in activities across Western Australia. Finally, the Better Together Ball was held during IODS. With over 1,100 attendees, RSL WA and Legacy WA again demonstrated to all involved the benefit of working together. Pleasingly, material funds were raised that will directly support services delivered by RSL WA.

The Board of RSL WA met in early June. Our focus was dominated by State Congress and the recently completed independent review of the Board and Trustees. Preparations for State Congress are advanced. We are looking forward to hosting Sub-Branched and our guests at Anzac House for the 110th State Congress of RSL WA. The program will again commence on Friday (26 June) with presentations and meetings held on Saturday (27 June).

The independent review of the Board and Trustees will be presented to delegates at State Congress. However, I am pleased to report that the Board has demonstrated improvement since the first independent review in 2024. Moreover, there is a clear approach for continued improvement in the upcoming two years. Finally, succession planning for directors and State President for 2027 was discussed with a clear approach agreed.

Final thoughts

Recent positive events hosted and involving RSL WA here in Western Australia should fill us all with pride. The collegiate approach taken by veterans in Western Australia is leading the Nation. RSL Australia and RSL WA are playing their part in National Defence. Our motto is as relevant now as it was when drafted over a century ago.

'The price of liberty is eternal vigilance.'

All the best.

From the CEO

Mr Stephen Barton

Last month saw us 'soft launch' our new RSL WA Workforce Connect program. The purpose of this new program is to provide employment and transition services for veterans. While we will be open to all sectors, we do have a specific interest in the growing defence industry in Western Australia.

Through AUKUS, HMAS Stirling will become the homeport for an Australian sovereign nuclear-powered submarine fleet. This is an enormous endeavour, one of the most ambitious tasks this country has embarked upon. It will require enormous investments in infrastructure and people – the workforce demands alone over the next decade are immense.

Indeed, we note the aspiration of the State Government to see the defence sector overtake agriculture as the second largest sector of the state's economy behind the mining and resources.

Veterans will clearly be part of the workforce solution. And there is a clear role for the RSL in helping veterans with both employment and transition. The program will commence formally on 1 July this year.

We are also seeking to build relationships with defence industry. There are logical connections to be made as we roll out Workforce Connect and the Goldsworthy Centre.

I'd like to congratulate John Arco (Highgate) and Dr Atul Garg (Applecross) for their awarding of the Medal of the Order of Australia in the King's Birthday Honours List. Both awards are richly deserved. Congratulations gentlemen.

This month also saw the passing of former RSL WA Trustee Wayne Tarr. An RSL member for 37 years and RSL WA Trustee for 20 years, only retiring in August 2023, Wayne also served for 30 years in the Citizen Military Forces and then the Australian Army Reserve. A devoted servant of the League (and the community), Wayne leaves behind an outstanding legacy.

Veteran Services update

Damien Roper – Veteran Services Manager

Building connections: reducing social isolation among Western Australian veterans

For many veterans, the transition from military service to civilian life can bring significant changes to their social networks and sense of belonging. The camaraderie, shared purpose and strong support systems that exist within military life are not always easily replaced, leaving some veterans vulnerable to social isolation and loneliness.

In Western Australia, the challenges can be even greater for veterans living in regional and remote communities, where distance and limited access to services can make it difficult to maintain social connections. Social isolation is more than simply being alone – it can have a profound impact on mental health, physical wellbeing and overall quality of life.

Reducing social isolation requires a community effort. Veteran organisations, including RSL WA and its Sub-Branches, play a vital role in creating opportunities for connection through social activities, commemorative events, welfare support, volunteer opportunities and peer engagement programs. These activities help veterans maintain meaningful relationships, build new networks and remain connected to their communities.

Family members, friends and fellow veterans also have an important role to play. A simple phone call, invitation for a coffee, or check-in can make a significant difference to someone who may be feeling disconnected. Small acts of connection often have a lasting impact.

As a community, we can all contribute to ensuring that no veteran feels forgotten or alone. By fostering inclusion, encouraging participation and strengthening local support networks, we can help veterans continue to enjoy the sense of belonging and mateship that has always been central to military service. And a reminder that a veteran who reaches out for support doesn't need to be an RSL member to gain that support. We're for all veterans.

If you know a veteran who may be experiencing social isolation, reach out. Connection starts with a conversation.

Goldsworthy Centre update

Janine Gardner – Goldsworthy Centre Manager

A sneaky peek inside...

A picture says a thousand words, and as you can see, the build of the Goldsworthy Centre is progressing really well.

The internal walls and partitions are going up, and we now have a new roof and exterior cladding in place.

Over the coming weeks, a new facade will begin to take shape, and the kitchen and laundry will be fitted out. Even more exciting is that the Goldsworthy team is beginning to grow, with our first Liaison Officer now onboard to help with the project and then support veterans and families once we move in.

Behind the scenes, we're also continuing to source furniture and fittings to make the centre feel comfortable and relaxed – and we simply can't wait to open.

Progress is happening fast, so keep an eye out for more updates soon!

The Better Together Ball 2026

A huge thank you to all who attended the Better Together Ball on Wednesday 27 May.

Through our combined efforts, we filled a room with 1,100 people and raised over $248,000 for WA veterans and their families.

All funds are distributed evenly between RSL WA and Legacy WA. The proceeds will enable RSL WA to expand core programs like RSL Active, Workforce Connect and more. For Legacy WA, the investment will support development of their long-standing Busselton location where they conduct respite and camp programs for kids.

A special thank you to Defence West, AMDA Foundation Limited, and Hon Paul Papalia CSC MLA for your support delivering this event. Together we united the Defence Industry, Government and ADF Officials towards a singular purpose – the wellbeing of WA veterans and their families.

Vale Wayne Tarr

It is with great sadness that RSL WA acknowledges the passing of long-standing former Board Trustee MAJ Wayne Tarr, aged 84.

The following is a tribute to Wayne Tarr's life. We thank Ray Galliot for providing this information.

Vale: Major Wayne Gordon Tarr, RFD, ED (RL)
(30 April 1942 – 5 June 2026)

Wayne Tarr was born in Western Australia and educated at Kent Street High School before starting a career with the Crown Law Department.

Between 1958 and 1980, Mr Tarr worked in various courts and offices of the Crown Law Department, including country courts. He held the position of deputy registrar at the Family Court of WA for five years from 1980, before moving to the WA Supreme Court where he worked as deputy registrar and administrative officer. In 1987 he was appointed as stipendiary magistrate and retired from that position in April 2007.

He enlisted in the CMF in 1959 with 10 Company Royal Australian Army Service Corps (RAASC). He was promoted through the ranks to Sergeant and was commissioned and appointed to the rank of 2nd Lieutenant in 1966. He served in postings as Transport Officer, Supply Officer and Admin Officer until 1969 when he visited South Vietnam on a familiarisation tour and was attached to 1 Transport Coy RAASC.

A transfer to the country with his civilian employment in 1971 made it necessary to transfer to the 28th Battalion, Royal Western Australia Regiment, a special conditions unit raised to cater for National Service Deferees, in order to continue with the CMF. He served as Transport Officer and then as an Infantry Platoon Commander before changing Corps to Infantry.

While posted to the 28th Battalion, Royal Western Australia Regiment, he filled the post of Transport Officer and then became an Infantry Platoon Commander. Promotions to Captain and Major followed and postings with 16 RWAR, 28 RWAR as Company Commander and on HQ 5th Military District, staff postings as SO2 Operations, second-in-command of 11/28th RWAR and Brigade Major of 13th Brigade, completed his Army Reserve service, retiring in 1989.

In 1984 he was nominated for attendance at the Tac 5 Course at LWC, Canungra for promotion to Lieutenant Colonel, but because of civilian employment promotion examinations, had to defer taking the course several times and the opportunity was lost. Study for the Stipendiary Magistrates Course and qualifying in 1987, made it necessary to transfer to the Inactive Reserve until his retirement on age in 1989 after 30 years of service.

As President of the RACT RAASC RAE (TN) Association in 1993 he held that position for four years and remained an active member of the Highgate RSL Sub-Branch, The Naval, Military and Air Forces Club and the Western Australian Club.

He was appointed Colonel Commandant of RACT, Western Region in 1997 and served until 2001.

His civilian career continued as Stipendiary Magistrate of the Central Law Courts, Perth, where he travelled the State to fulfil his duties.

In July 2003, he was appointed Trustee of WA Branch of the Returned and Services League and a member of the National Tribunal in 2004.

Following his retirement from the judiciary in 2007, Magistrate Wayne Tarr was appointed as an acting magistrate for 12 months to address delays at courts throughout Western Australia. Mr Tarr helped reduce backlogs at Magistrate's Courts in Bunbury, Rockingham, Armadale and the Goldfields region – in particular Esperance and Kalgoorlie. He spent one week per month at each of these courts, which resulted in his ARes career being placed on hold.

Wayne dedicated more than 20 years of service as a Trustee of the Board of Directors. Throughout his two decades as an RSL WA Trustee, he provided invaluable counsel, leadership and steadfast support to the Board.

We honour Wayne's outstanding service and enduring commitment to the Western Australian community.

Our thoughts and deepest condolences are with his family.

Vale Wayne Tarr.
