BEVERAGE LIST

'mina

BEFORE THE POUR

At 'mina, wine isn't a pairing; it's a participant.

In Sicily, bottles are opened to mark arrival, invite conversation, and bring people together at the table.

Many of the wines you'll find here come from places we love deeply—volcanic slopes, seaside vineyards, and family cellars—chosen not for prestige, but for how they feel when shared.

Some bottles are rare. Some are familiar.
All are meant to be enjoyed.

If something catches your eye, ask us why we love it.
We are happy to share the story.

*Corkage Fee | $30 per 750ml bottle
Limited to two bottles per party.*

Corkage is graciously waived with the purchase of a bottle from our cellar.

To preserve the integrity and thoughtfulness of our wine program, we kindly ask that guests refrain from bringing wines currently represented on our list.

"Il vino è la poesia della terra."
Wine is the poetry of the earth

ETNA BIANCO — NORTHERN SLOPE

Where Etna's most defined expressions take shape.

The northern slope of Mount Etna is home to its most celebrated vineyards. Younger volcanic soils and cooler temperatures give these wines tension, clarity, and balance.

The whites here are structured and mineral-driven—focused, expressive, and never heavy.

ETNA BIANCO — EASTERN SLOPE

Where Mount Etna meets the Ionian Sea.

The eastern side of Etna is cooler and greener, shaped by sea air and rain.
The vineyards look toward the water—and you can taste it: vibrant, mineral-driven wines with quiet power.

This is home to Etna Bianco Superiore from Milo, where Carricante finds its most expressive voice—whites marked by energy, salinity, and a structure that rewards patience.

ETNA BIANCO — SOUTH-WESTERN SLOPE

Where the mountain softens.

The south-western slope of Etna is shaped by older, decomposed volcanic soils and gentle alluvial influence. These vineyards see more warmth and less severity, producing whites that are aromatic, expressive, and inviting.

The wines lean floral and open, with a relaxed energy—joyful without being simple.

ETNA ROSSO — NORTHERN SLOPE

Where Etna's most precise reds take shape.

The northern slope of Mount Etna is home to the mountain's most celebrated vineyards.

Younger volcanic soils, shaped by recent lava flows, give these wines tension, minerality, and fine-grained structure.

The reds here are focused and expressive, with elegant tannins and remarkable balance—often compared to Burgundy or Barolo, not for power, but for precision.

They age beautifully and pair effortlessly with food.

ETNA ROSSO — SOUTH-EASTERN SLOPE

Where Etna shows its warmth.

The south-eastern slope of Mount Etna receives the most sun, creating a warmer, drier growing environment.

Reds from this side of the mountain are deeper and more expressive, with firmer tannins and a generosity shaped by extended sunlight.

These wines carry more weight on the palate, yet remain balanced by altitude and volcanic soils—powerful without being heavy.

ETNA ROSSO — SOUTH-WESTERN SLOPE

Where altitude brings balance.

The south-western slope of Mount Etna is defined by high-altitude vineyards, many rising above 3,000 feet.

Older, decomposed volcanic soils and cooler air temper the sun, resulting in wines with balance, aromatics, and a softer expression of tannin.

These reds are elegant and approachable, offering lift and freshness alongside depth—composed rather than forceful, and well suited to long meals.
