Krystn Macomber Named 2026 Disruptive Tech Change Agent Award Winner

Founder and CEO of Summit Strategy recognized for advancing practical, responsible innovation in government contracting and growth strategy

ALISO VIEJO, Calif. (February 11, 2026) – Krystn Macomber, Founder and CEO of Summit Strategy, has been named a 2026 Disruptive Tech Change Agent Award Winner by FORUM, an honor recognizing leaders who are meaningfully shaping how emerging technologies are applied across government and industry.

The Disruptive Tech Change Agent Award highlights individuals who go beyond experimentation or hype to drive real-world impact. Macomber was selected for her work helping government contractors and professional services firms modernize business development, capture, proposal, and growth systems—particularly through disciplined, responsible integration of technology and AI into decision-making processes.

Throughout her 23-year career, Macomber has worked with hundreds of organizations ranging from early-stage firms to global enterprises, helping teams move away from reactive approaches and toward repeatable growth systems that align strategy, people, and execution. Her work consistently emphasizes that technology is only effective when paired with clear processes, accountability, and sound judgment.

“This recognition matters because it’s not about shiny tools or trends,” said Macomber. “It’s about using technology to support better decisions, stronger teams, and more sustainable growth. Real disruption happens when systems actually work in the real world.”

Award recipients will be recognized during the 2026 Disruptive Tech Summit and Awards Ceremony, hosted by FORUM, which convenes senior government, industry, and technology leaders to explore how innovation is reshaping mission delivery.

Macomber is also a 2026 OrangeSlices Engage FedCiv 150 Honoree and a former Division I basketball player. She is widely recognized for her candid, systems-driven approach to growth in government contracting and professional services markets.
