

Madrona Craftsman

SEATTLE, WA

This Craftsman home with stunning views of Lake Washington and the Cascades, was built in 1911 and since the last remodel was over 20 years ago, it was due for an update while staying true to the original style. Working within the existing footprint, the home was updated with new finishes and fixtures, cabinetry, and furniture throughout. The entirety of the project included remodeling the kitchen, dining, the main floor powder room, the primary and additional upstairs bathrooms, along with the nursery.

The newly refreshed home has a clean kitchen that boasts new cabinets, tile, and fresh paint. Since most nights the homeowners cook together, an updated and bright kitchen was integral to the design. One of the clients is a skilled woodworker who has made some of the couple's treasured furniture pieces, including a custom breakfast table and matching open shelving within the kitchen. The dark walnut tone, adding to the overall high contrast feel, is exactly what they envisioned in this space.

Three bathrooms in the home were transformed to feel calm and serene. On the main floor, the powder room was updated with a romantic palette of softened green paint, floral wallpaper, and gold accents paired with black fixtures. Upstairs, the primary bathroom balances bright white surfaces with sleek black fixtures and warm wood cabinetry, with natural light from a skylight above. The additional upstairs bathroom continues the theme with black fixtures set against white tile, with niches and detailing highlighted by black grout.
