

West Seattle MidCentury Modern

SEATTLE, WA

This West Seattle midcentury home underwent a full gut remodel to modernize its layout and finishes while maximizing stunning water views. New siding, a redesigned deck, and updated railings refreshed the exterior, while inside, hardwood floors, a contemporary wood slat stair railing, and a coordinating privacy wall transformed the entry. A built-in closet creates a distinct foyer, clearly separating it from the living room.

The dining room and kitchen were opened up for unobstructed sightlines, with the cramped kitchen expanded into a spacious room featuring a large island, sleek black and wood cabinetry, and hidden appliances for a streamlined look. Lighting fixtures were updated throughout, and both bathrooms were fully renovated. The hallway bath now bright and playful, and the primary bath featuring a large walk-in shower and new window for added light. A cleaner, more geometric back deck with steel and cable railings now connects the home seamlessly to the yard and surrounding views.
