

Normandy Park Baths

SEATTLE, WA

The primary and kid's baths in this Normandy Park got a full refresh. The vision for the primary bath was to expand it into a more spacious, spa-like space with soft, neutral tones and an almost boho feel. While the slanted ceiling was a challenge, the design turned it into an opportunity and transformed the original water closet into a luxurious shower that would then include the skylight for a shower with a view.

A pre-existing closet was turned into a new kid's bath. Intended for both a boy and a girl, the design was all about playful colors. Materials like terrazzo and patterned tile as well as brightly colored cabinetry brought in a lot of fun while also creating a space that would grow with the children.
