

AJ Bernal is an adventurous horn player and teacher. In July of 2023, he made his international debut at the International Horn Symposium in Montréal, performing a rediscovered work by Latin American composer Fulvio Villalobos-Sandoval. AJ also serves as second horn for CityMusic, Cleveland where he has had the opportunity to work with premiere performers from across the country. As a teacher, AJ has taught private brass lessons since 2013 and has recently served as Part-Time Instructor of Horn at the University of Kentucky. AJ holds a D.M.A. in horn performance and Music Theory Pedagogy certificate from the University of Kentucky (24'), an M.M. from Southern Illinois University (21'), and a B.M.E. from Indiana State University (18').
