Women in Wildlife Talk

Today, our Women in Wildlife Society hosted an inspiring and insightful talk celebrating the experiences of women within the wildlife and conservation sector. The session explored the diverse career paths available within the industry, the challenges and achievements women have experienced in the field, and the importance of creating supportive spaces and opportunities for future professionals.

Students also had the chance to learn more about the exciting opportunities available through the society, including networking, events, skills development, and ways to connect with others who share a passion for wildlife and conservation

Staff & Student Conference

This year, we proudly hosted our second Staff and Student Conference, an inspiring day dedicated to celebrating the hard work, creativity, and dedication of both our staff and students.

From innovative projects and research to engaging presentations and discussions, it was incredible to see the wide range of talent, knowledge, and passion showcased across all subject areas. The conference provided a fantastic opportunity for individuals to share ideas, collaborate, and celebrate achievements within the SGS community.

The sense of communication, collaboration, and pride throughout the day was truly inspiring.

Easter Bake Sale

Easter Bake Sale & Clothes Swap

Our Bristol School of Art students recently hosted an Easter bake sale and clothes swap in support of a local mental health charity.

The event was a fantastic opportunity for students to socialise, get involved in fundraising, and celebrate the end of term together, while supporting an important cause.

To celebrate such an amazing term, students from all courses also received an Easter treat as a way of recognising their hard work and achievements throughout the semester.

Student Voices: Working with Nature Conference

We are incredibly proud to have hosted our first Student Voices: Working for Nature conference.

In an exciting collaboration with regional partners, the event brought together degree students from zoological, wildlife, and conservation fields, giving them the opportunity to experience the challenge of organising and delivering a professional conference. Throughout the day, students showcased their knowledge, passion, and dedication to the future of wildlife conservation through engaging discussions, presentations, and networking opportunities.

The conference was a fantastic opportunity for students to build confidence, develop professional skills, and connect with others who share the same passion for protecting nature and wildlife.

A huge thank you to Dr. Sarah Richdon for delivering such an inspiring keynote speech, and to all of our regional partners who helped make the event such a success.

Bristol Zoo Project African Forest Opening

Our Zoological Management & Conservation Level 4 & 5 students recently took part in an exciting visit to the African Forest at Bristol Zoo Project, where they attended a specialist lecture on behavioural data collection and explored how the gorilla group is settling into their new habitat.

The session provided valuable insight into how behavioural monitoring is used in modern conservation and zoo management, offering a real-world perspective on animal welfare, research methods, and data collection in practice.

With facilities like the African Forest located on their campus, students benefit from exceptional access to industry-standard environments, allowing them to develop practical skills, gain hands-on experience, and learn directly from professionals working in the field.

The visit offered an inspiring and memorable learning experience, strengthening students' understanding of contemporary conservation work and the importance of evidence-based animal care.

Applicant Day

Sports Therapy & Rehabilitation Applicant Day

Over the past few months, we have hosted a series of applicant days for our courses, one of which focused on our Sports Therapy & Rehabilitation degree.

Applicants had the opportunity to explore the course in detail, learn more about student finance and support, and gain a real insight into what life at SGS is like. The sessions provided a great chance to meet staff, ask questions, and discover the different pathways available within the programme.

It was a fantastic series of events full of insight, enthusiasm, and inspiration for the journey ahead.
