Let's Have a Cup of Doodh Patti Chai

dir. Brian Hung

After the family of three moved into the community, the middle-aged unemployed father Chris went into business with an Indian partner; the high school daughter Wing Yan met Elem, an asylum seeker from Africa and becomes friends with him. Recalling the racial stereotypes formed while living in Guangzhou, the mother Erica feels anxious and unease over what is happening here...

The Middle Dog Days, dir. Han Okhi

Part of our HAN OKHI RETROSPECTIVE, shining a light on one of South Korea's foremost pioneers of avant-garde and experimental cinema.

June 12 - 5:00 PM

Jet Lag in Summer, dir. Yan Kurnao

In New York City, a young Chinese couple striving for a new life suddenly face a separation during the pandemic. The intrusion of two strangers throws their world off balance, changing their relationship into an uncharted territory where nothing will remain the same.

Dad vs Bees, dir. David Quach

A 79 year old Asian man is on a quest to rid his beloved garden of a bee infestation. In his way are not just bees but age, language, intergenerational trauma and the struggles of being a refugee in Australia

June 13 - 1:00 PM

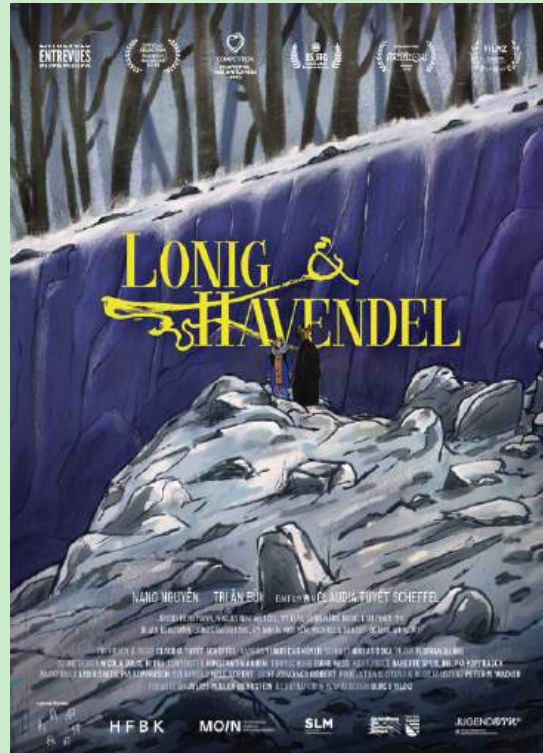

"Interconnecting Dialogues" is a continuation of Arts East-West's Panel Discussion series, moderated by Guy Rodgers. This panel will discuss pathways for bridging the gaps between generations and sectors in the arts, and building new bridges between cultural communities. The key themes discussed in the panel will include:

- Building sustainable bridges between Asian-Canadian, anglophone, francophone, and other cultural communities
- The role of intersectionality in shaping artistic identity and practice
- Pathways for continuing and deepening intercultural dialogue

June 13 - 2:30 PM

Loney and Havender, dir. Claudia Tuyét Scheffel

To experience snow and learn German, the young Vietnamese woman Trúc Lâm moves to a little town in the Erz Mountains. During a guided tour of a mine, she leaves her group and reaches the other side of the mountain through a secondary shaft. The world there is similar to the one she left – only all the people are different. She meets Duc, who is also from Vietnam and whose parents have an Asian snack bar. And she meets a mysterious spirit who offers to make a deal with her to enable her return to her old world.

Featuring a Q&A with the director, Claudia Tuyét Scheffel!
