Travelling is an essential experience for many people, and at some point, we all need to venture beyond South Africa's borders.

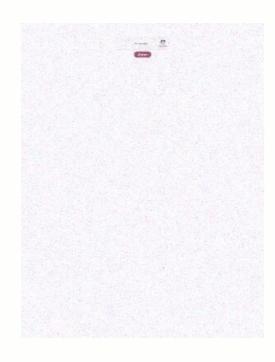

A passport is the most crucial document required for international travel, confirming one's nationality and identity. In South Africa, passports are printed in Pretoria and distributed through various offices. To apply for a passport, you must do so in person, as the officer needs to verify your identity, photograph, and fingerprints. You'll also need a South African identity number, which can be obtained by applying for one if you don't have it. The Department of Home Affairs issues different types of passport, valid for 10 years from the date of issue. To apply for this passport, you'll need to provide your original identity document and birth certificate, as well as two color photographs that meet specific standards. You must also complete a fingerprint form (DHA-9) and pay the prescribed fee. Additionally, if you're divorced or married, you may need to submit relevant documents, such as divorce decrees or notarized marriage certificates. Whether you're applying from within South Africa or abroad, make sure to apply in person and provide all required documents to ensure a smooth application process.

A Tourist Passport for minors under 16 costs R400 and takes 10 days to process. It is valid for five years. Official Passports are designed for government officials who need to travel on official business.

They are valid for five years and require a notarized application form, original ID document, and letter from the institution's head or delegate confirming the need for an official trip.

For South African citizenship, applicants must provide a valid official passport or a lost passport report (DHA-335) and confirmation of loss reporting to the police. Additionally, an undertaking is required to use the passport only for authorized trips, keep it safe, and return it upon completion. There are three types of passports: 1. Diplomatic Passport: Issued by the Department of International Relations. 2. Travel Document: For permanent residents who cannot obtain travel documents from their country of origin. Valid for 5 years. 3. Emergency Travel Certificate: For citizens requiring urgent travel, with a valid reason and necessary documentation (ID document, two colored photographs, fingerprints). Requirements include: * Completed application form * Written confirmation by the applicant's country of origin (except refugees) * Permanent residence permit and copy * Two color photographs The process takes around 10 days for R400. The emergency travel certificate costs R140, with a requirement to obtain a proper passport upon return. Note that all documents must be completed in black ink, and separate application forms are required for husbands, wives, and children.

Additionally, passports are issued according to the National Population Register (NPR) at the time of application. New regulations include: * Including both mother's and father's details on minor citizens' passports * Replacing unabridged birth certificates with a new passport system for SA minors The process for applying for a child's passport involves providing necessary documentation and meeting specific requirements.

The requirements for "Tourist Passports: Persons under 16 years" include: * The applicant must be a South African citizen aged 15 or younger. * The passport is valid for 5 years and cannot be renewed. A new application must be submitted when the validity period expires. * To apply, you need to provide: + A completed passport application form (DHA-73). + If parents are married, both parents and the child must sign the form, and all three must attend the Home Affairs office or SA Mission/Consulate together. If a parent cannot be present, a letter of consent and copy of ID will no longer be accepted. + If divorced or sole parental rights have not been granted, both parents and the child must attend the application submission, and both must sign the form.

+ If a parent is deceased, a death certificate and copy thereof must accompany the application. + For minors born out of wedlock, the biological father's consent may be required if certain circumstances apply. In this case, all three must attend the application submission. + If the applicant is in the care of a guardian other than parents, proof of the High Court's appointment must be provided. + A copy of the child's South African birth certificate and two colour passport and ID Photograph Specifications are also required. Additionally, if a parent cannot be located or refuses to consent, or a dispute arises, the matter should be referred to the Children's Court, with the court's decision submitted with the application. To get your biometric data recorded and collect your passport or ID, you'll need to visit Home Affairs website by creating a profile, answering security questions, setting a password, and capturing a one-time pin sent to your cellphone. Attach a copy of your ID and enter your account details. Log in to authorise the payment, then add the Department of Home Affairs to record your biometric data. If you live in Cape Town, Johannesburg, or Pretoria, you can select a bank branch with the required facilities; otherwise, visit your local Home Affairs office without an appointment at a bank branch, you'll receive time slot options and confirmation via email and SMS, which you'll need to bring with you. You'll need to take your ID book
