One day, he gave in to their requests and shared one of his shimmering scales with a small blue fish, who had been begging for it. This act sparked a chain reaction as the little fish told the other fish about the Rainbow Fish's generosity, and soon they too began to admire his scales. The lesson finally sank in when the little blue fish returned and asked for another scale. This time, the Rainbow Fish willingly gave away his smallest scale, and in doing so, he felt a sense of joy and contentment. As word of his kindness spread, the other fish began to admire him once more, and soon he was surrounded by those seeking his scales. In the end, the Rainbow Fish distributed his remaining scales among the community, and for the first time, he felt true happiness in sharing his beauty with others.
