The History of Medicine in Scotland: A Seedbed of Medical Innovation

19 – 30 June 2026

Level 3
MODERATE

Loch Ewe

Scottish medical schools have had a disproportionate international impact through history. Scots physicians and surgeons and the medical schools and colleges that flourished in the 18th and 19th centuries were influential in shaping the modern medical profession – from the invention of the hypodermic syringe and the use of chloroform in anesthesia, to pioneering bone graft surgery and the first cloned sheep.

Scottish medical institutions like the Medical Royal Colleges in Edinburgh and Glasgow and the university medical schools in these cities have been hugely influential in medical education and fostered a culture of research and enquiry. From the anatomical studies of the Monro dynasty in the 18th century to today's challenges of antibiotic resistance, cancer treatment, and neurodegenerative diseases, Scotland has always been a seedbed of medical innovation.

Experience some of Scotland's most spectacular landscapes and take in its dramatic history, distinctive culture and excellent cuisine, including its famed whisky. Stay in hotels with magnificent settings, which you will be able to enjoy well into the long, light-filled evenings.

THIS TOUR IS CLASSED AS:

Level 3 | Moderate

Regular walking at destinations, extended standing and/or increased travel distances. Good fitness is required.

Tour Leader

Heather McFall is a highly experienced tourist guide and tour manager and has been leading land based and small bespoke cruise tours across the UK, Europe, and worldwide destinations for many years. Heather was also highly praised as tour leader on a recent Medico-Chirurgical Society tour for JBT in the UK.

Heather is also a qualified horticulturalist, guest speaker/lecturer, leading garden tours throughout the UK and Europe. When she is not guiding, she can be found in her precious and often neglected garden, walking with friends, or experiencing new travel adventures.

Speakers and specialist guides

You will hear from several outstanding speakers, including:

Historian and guide, Sheila Szatkowski, author of Enlightenment Edinburgh.

Curator and historian, Cat Irving, Human Remains Conservator at Surgeons' Hall, Edinburgh.

Iain Macintyre, a surgeon and former Royal College of Surgeons Edinburgh Vice-President.

Tom Scotland, a retired orthopaedic surgeon who became a cycling orthopaedic historian and author, focusing on the history of medicine and surgery during World War I.

Ian Deveney, whose long-standing love affair with Scotland led to a thriving living history business. He has been a guide at Culloden for over 6 years and his knowledge of Scottish history and culture, from the Vikings to the Scottish Wars of Independence and the Jacobite Risings of 1745, is second to none.
