

2000 USAC WESTERN SPRINT CAR SEASON

Todd Ellison of West Jordan, Utah escaped a late-season point battle with Tony Hunt to claim the 2000 Western Sprint Car Championship by a margin of 74 points.

Davey Hamilton, the only driver to start every Indy Racing League event since that ' inception in 1996, appeared to be the driver to beat in the early going with four wins in the first six races, but his IRL commitments cost him a chance at the title despite finishing with six total victories, more than any other driver. He led the points four months but eventually finished sixth in the POINTS, although his team, Consani Racing, was crowned the car owner champion.

Ellison scored his lone win at Tucson in June, then snatched the point lead at Boise in July as Hamilton did not compete. He led the rest of the way, although Hunt's three victories helped him tie Ellison for the lead after the July race at Salt Lake City, Utah. Ellison never finished worse than eighth in the 15 races!

A total of seven different driver won races in the 15-race conducted at 10 different ovals.

Participants were treated to a June swing of races which included first-time appearances at Albuquerque, N.M. and Dodge City, Kans. but were saddened to learn of the late-season death of Dodge City race organizer and former National Sprint Car coordinator Gary Sokola.

Mike Boat, brother of Indy Racing League veteran Billy Boat, was a first-time winner, as was Brad Noffsinger, who won the finale at Irwindale, Calif. Former champions Jeff Gardner and Bud Kaeding also scored wins during the campaign.

Notable by their performances were lady drivers Shauna Hogg and Amy Barnes, who shared the Most Improved Driver honors after finishing 10th and 11th in the points, as well as Burney Lamar, who took third in the POINTS and the Rookie of the Year award.
