Given article text here January and February were fantastic months on the lake! We reeled in plenty of bass using Alabama Rigs in depths ranging from 8 to 20 feet around points. The fish were active during these months. December marked the beginning of winter fishing, and the bass and crappie started to venture into deeper waters, where they became more abundant. Crappie up to 14 inches were caught during this period. As temperatures dropped in November, the fishing picked up significantly. Bass and crappie moved into shallower waters, between 4 and 8 feet deep, and were being reeled in with ease. October was a decent month for bass and crappie, although high temperatures delayed their fall migration patterns. We still managed to catch some fish during this time. July proved to be an excellent month for bass and crappie fishing! The bass bit on deep crankbaits and big plum worms in depths ranging from 10 to 20 feet. May and June offered fantastic fishing opportunities, with the warmer temperatures enticing both bass and crappie into deeper waters. We had a great time catching these species during this period. The last two months have been some of the best fishing of the year! As the bass prepared to spawn, we caught hundreds of fish using various techniques. January and February were also great months for fishing, despite the cold temperatures. We used Alabama Rigs to catch three to four bass per day.
