ABIDE & GROW

Stewardship Campaign Report

Thank you to all who have participated so generously in our Abide & Grow Stewardship Campaign. We are grateful to report that over 30 percent of our parish households have responded, resulting in more than ninety thousand dollars in new or increased offertory commitments. Thank you! Your generosity strengthens our ability to respond to the parish's growth and supports the continued financial health of our community.

For those who have not yet had the chance to participate, a final letter with a personalized Commitment Card will be mailed to you soon. We warmly invite every household to take part, as our goal is full parish participation. Cards may be returned by mail, brought to Mass, or completed electronically online. Please return all cards by Sunday, January 18.

Electronic giving is a simple and secure way to support. You can set up recurring gifts or make a one-time donation directly through our website.

Thank you again for your generosity and for helping our parish respond to the growth God is bringing here.

Rediscovering Latin in Our Advent Worship

You have likely noticed that, as we did in Lent, we have been singing the ordinary Mass parts in Latin this Advent. The ordinary parts of the Mass are the prayers that remain the same each week: the Kyrie, Gloria (which is omitted in Advent & Lent), Sanctus, and Agnus Dei. They are called "ordinary" because, unlike much of the Mass, these prayers do not change week to week and thus are especially fitting for a common language that all Catholics can learn and sing together. For generations the Church has encouraged the use of Latin for these stable parts of the liturgy so that the faithful can participate with a shared voice no matter where they worship.

Latin has a special place in our Catholic faith. It is a sacred language used in our worship for centuries, a language that has shaped the prayer life of countless saints. Even though the Mass is most commonly celebrated today in our local languages, the Church has never intended for Latin to fade from our liturgical life. Its steady, reverent character helps remind us that the liturgy connects us with Catholics throughout the world and throughout history.

This is why the Second Vatican Council, in Sacrosanctum Concilium, stated that that "the use of the Latin language is to be preserved" and that the faithful should be able to "say or sing together in Latin those parts of the Ordinary of the Mass which pertain to them." The Council fathers desired that Catholics remain familiar with these basic liturgical prayers in Latin so that no matter where we find ourselves, be it Rome, Africa, Asia, or another parish down the road, we can join in the Church's universal prayer with ease.

Advent and Lent are especially good moments to lean into this tradition. Both are seasons of preparation and quiet reflection, times when the Church invites us to step back from our usual routines and focus more intentionally on prayer. Singing the Mass parts in Latin gently signals that these seasons are meant to be different and that we are being invited into deeper silence and expectation.

By using Latin for the ordinary parts of the Mass, we are joining our voices to the wider Church and allowing this shared language to enrich our prayer. May this practice during Advent, and again during Lent, help us enter more fully into the mysteries we celebrate and draw us closer to Christ in a spirit of reverence, unity, and hope.

Nick Labrie
Director of Mission Operations

ON THE COVER

The Annunciation, Attributed to Ciro Ferri, 17th Century

The Annunciation is one of the most profound moments in the story of our salvation: the moment when God enters human history in the womb of the Virgin Mary. In the cover painting attributed to the 17th-century Baroque artist Ciro Ferri, we are invited to contemplate this mystery not simply as an event of the past, but as a living truth that forms the heart of Christian faith. The Incarnation, Jesus taking flesh, is the hinge of salvation history, the moment when divine love becomes visible, vulnerable, and near.

In Ferri's rendering, the angel Gabriel approaches Mary with dynamic motion characteristic of the Baroque period. A beam of light, representing the Holy Spirit, often descends toward Mary, reminding us that the Incarnation is God's initiative, pure gift. Mary, usually shown kneeling or pausing from her reading, receives this heavenly message with a mixture of humility and openness. Her simple domestic setting highlights an essential Christian truth: God enters the ordinary and transforms it from within.

The painting also communicates theology through symbolic details. Mary is traditionally clothed in blue, signifying heavenly grace, and red, pointing toward Christ's future suffering. A lily represents her purity, while an open book suggests her meditation on Scripture, the very Word that is about to become flesh. The interplay of light and shadow emphasizes the breakthrough of divine grace into a world waiting for redemption. Through composition, gesture, and color, the artwork teaches that the Incarnation is both a divine miracle and a profoundly human encounter.

For Catholics, the Annunciation is more than an inspiring moment; it is the foundation of sacramental life. Because God became flesh, Christ shares our humanity and offers us his divinity. In the Eucharist, we receive the Body that first took shape in Mary's womb. Ferri's painting gently directs our hearts toward this connection, from the quiet room in Nazareth to the altar of every parish church, where Emmanuel, God-with-us, continues to dwell among his people.

As we reflect on this painting, we are invited to imitate Mary's response to God. Her fiat, "Let it be done to me," is a model for our own discipleship. In our homes, workplaces, and parish life, God still speaks, still invites, still enters the ordinary. May our hearts, like Mary's, be open to receive Christ, and may the mystery of the Annunciation renew our gratitude for a God who loved us enough to take on our flesh and walk among us.
