

Messaging to Latinos in 2026

Uniquely Latino factors: why everyone shifted in 2024, but Latinos shifted more

1

Churn & malleability

A heavy contingent of young and immigrant voters (especially non-college immigrants) weakly tied to any party, and a huge contingent of new voters waiting in the wings.

2

A distinct discontent

A special relationship to the main crises of the Biden years (inflation and migration) that soured many on the administration and changed, for some, their stereotypes of the parties.

3

New social dynamics

A fractured media environment and a change in the social acceptability (and desirability) of voting for Trump within Latino social circles.

Roadmap

- Most effective overall messaging frames
 - Cares
 - Wrong Priorities
 - Broken Promises
- Economic messaging
- Immigration messaging
- Connecting culturally, in English and Spanish

Most Effective Message Frames

The best messages:

- Demonstrate the ways Democratic leaders care more about working people while Republican leaders care more about the small wealthy elite
 - Use corruption examples as proof points (in English) vs using corruption as overarching frame
- Highlight the GOP's focus on the wrong priorities (anything instead of lowering costs)
- Create permission structures that invite defector back, including highlighting Trump's broken campaign promises

Forced Choice: Democratic and GOP Critiques

FRAME	STATEMENT A - DEM CRITIQUE	STATEMENT B - GOP CRITIQUE
CARES/LOYALTY	Democrats care more about their wealthy donors and the party establishment than everyday Americans.	Republicans care more about the wealthy elite and being loyal to Donald Trump than everyday Americans.
CORRUPTION	Democrats are corrupt. They let billions of taxpayer dollars get stolen through fraud and waste in government programs they were supposed to oversee while everyday Americans struggle with rising costs.	Republicans are corrupt. They buried the Epstein investigation to protect the wealthy elite while cutting healthcare and food programs for everyday Americans who are struggling with rising costs.
WRONG PRIORITIES	Democrats have the wrong priorities. They're too focused on being politically correct and pushing social issues instead of lowering the cost of living for working families.	Republicans have the wrong priorities. They're too focused on wars, mass deportations, and tax cuts for the wealthy instead of lowering the cost of living for working families.

Democrats' greatest advantage on fight about who each party cares about: GOP perceived as caring more about the wealthy elite and being loyal to Donald Trump than everyday Americans

Net Agreement: Critiques about Republicans
Among registered Latinos in competitive districts

Strong majority of Latinos agree with statements about corrupt politicians looking out for themselves — either by trading stocks in industries they oversee or benefitting themselves & their friends

Perceptions of Corruption

Among registered Latino voters nationally

■ Total Agree ■ DK/Ref ■ Total Disagree

[SPLIT A] “Corrupt politicians are looking out for themselves – getting richer by trading stocks in industries they oversee in Congress, and grabbing up campaign cash from special interests – while supporting policies that make basic necessities less affordable.”

[SPLIT B] “Corrupt politicians are looking out for themselves – getting richer by supporting programs that benefit them and other powerful people, and giving contracts to friends and family – while supporting policies that make basic necessities less affordable.”

But corruption frames about the parties are less resonant among Spanish-dominant Latinos

Democrat vs. Trump/GOP Statements

(SPLIT A) ECONOMY ONLY: Democrats in Congress know prices are too high and Republicans have made it worse by voting to support Trump's tariffs and siding with billionaires and corporations that put profits ahead of working Americans. Democrats will cut middle-class taxes and lower prices by taking on corporations that unfairly raise prices and the corrupt politicians who profit from it.

(SPLIT B) ECONOMY + IMMIGRATION: Democrats in Congress know that prices are too high and Republicans are focused on out-of-control immigration enforcement instead of lowering costs. Democrats will cut middle-class taxes and lower prices by taking on corporations that raise prices unfairly while fighting for immigration measures that prevent further violence and ensure accountability.

VS.

TRUMP/GOP STATEMENT: Trump and Republicans in Congress know working families are struggling with rising prices. They will cut taxes for all Americans and roll back unnecessary regulations that are raising costs and killing jobs, while backing police who keep us safe and immigration agents who keep our border secure.

“Wrong Priorities” frame that combines two issues outperforms economy-only messages

TRUMP '24

“Trump has not done anything that he had said on his campaign. He has not helped the people at all. It’s made the people worse and more in poverty than anything. He said on day one he was going to stop the wars. He didn’t. He said he was going to give the people more money and lower everything...but everything he has said on his campaign trail, he has not done. And that’s what really hurts is because it was all lies. And I know they all lie at some point and some view, but come on, you got to do at least some of the stuff that you said you were going to do. So it’s really gotten worse every month. It just gets worse.”

Economy & Cost of Living

The economy is not just the economy. It's about identity, values, and culture.

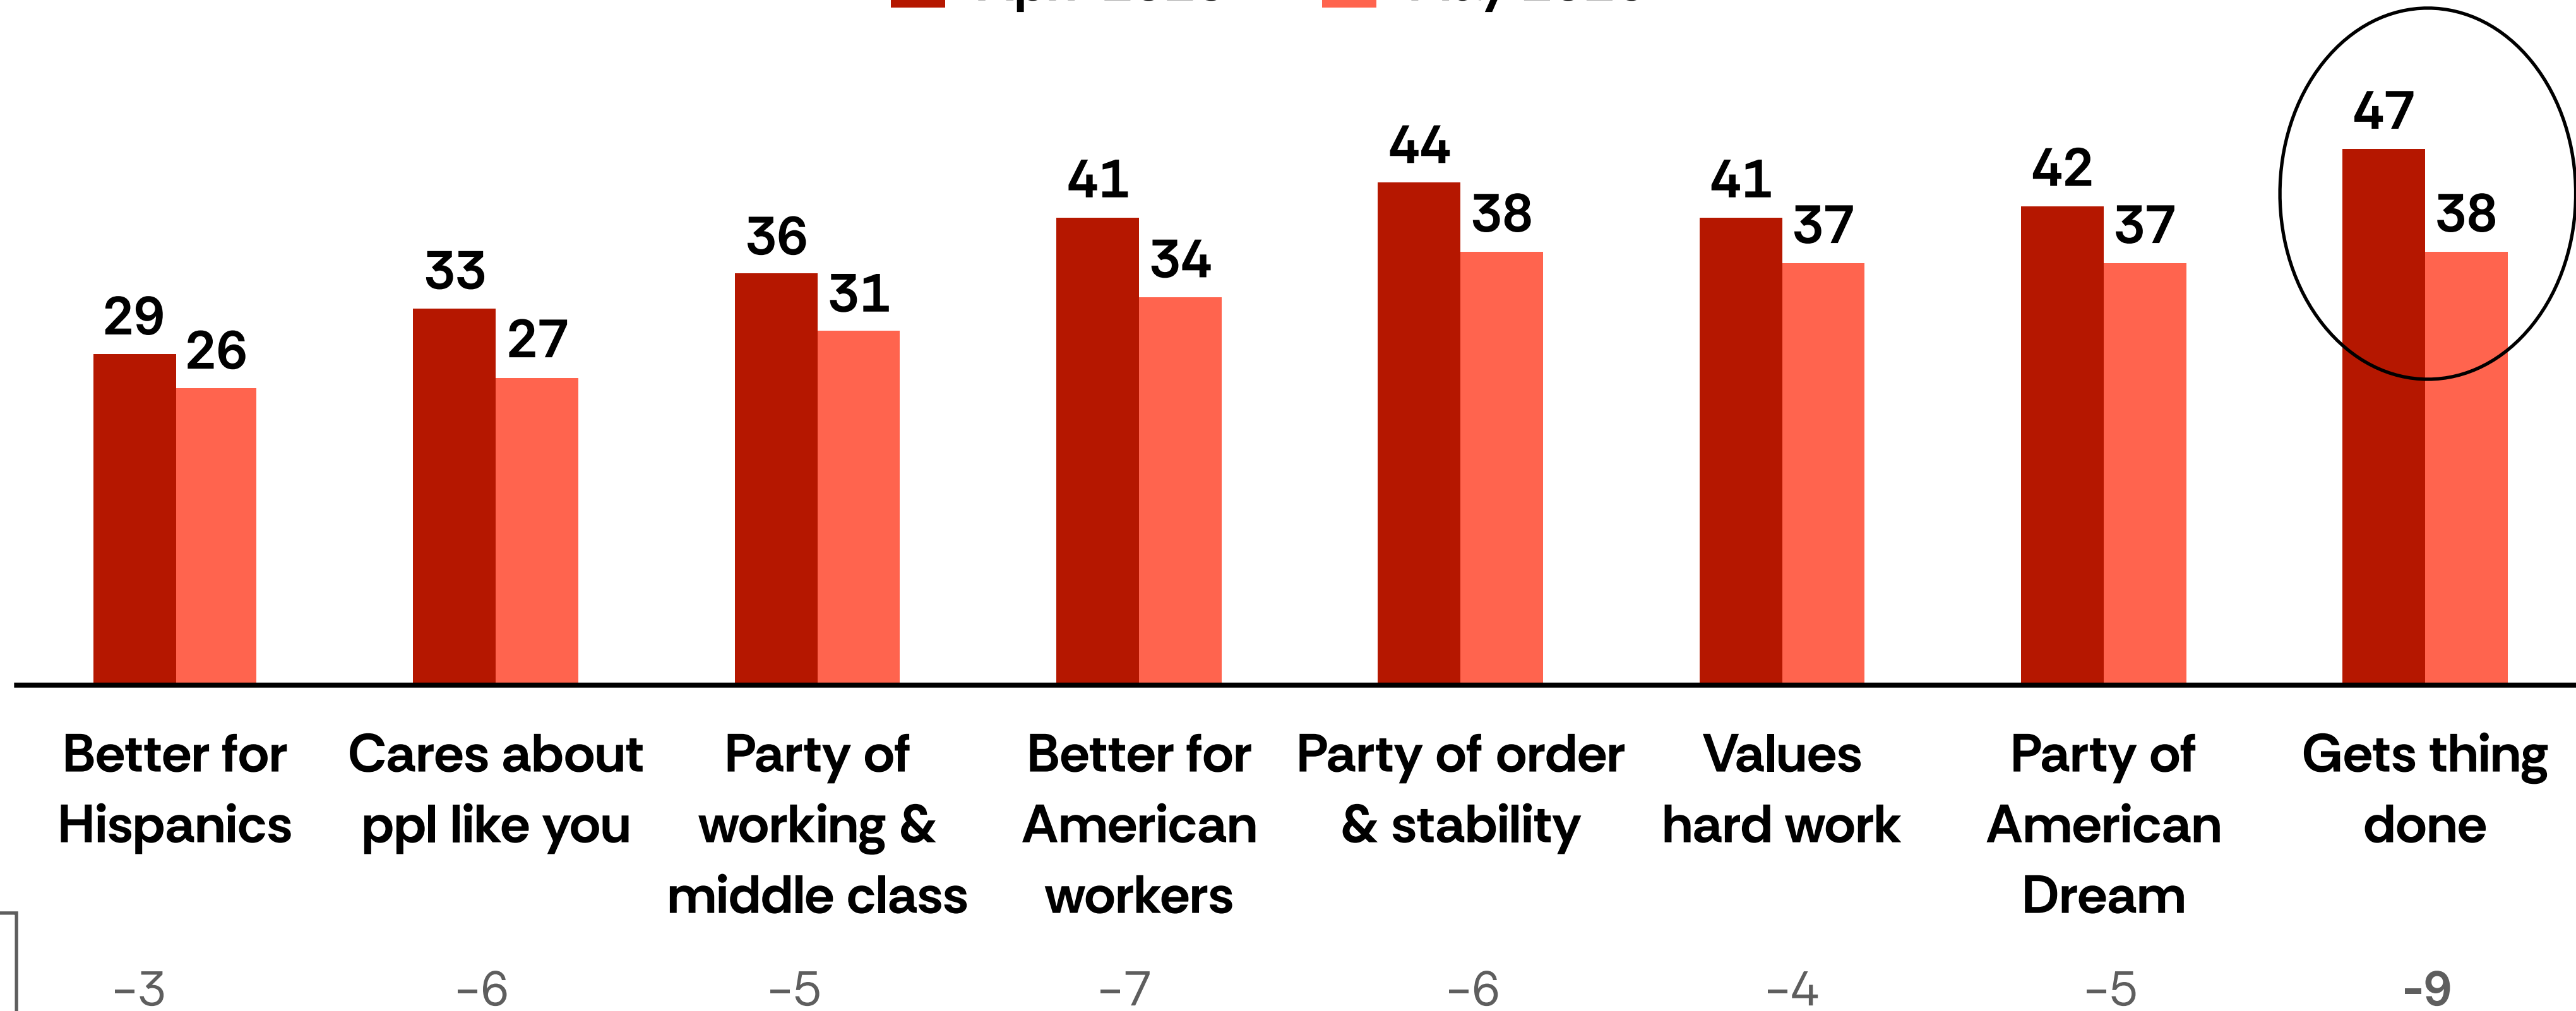

Latinos are asking themselves:

- Who cares more about people like me?
- Who shares my values, and can get things done?

Latinos have soured on the Republican Party brand in the past year, especially on “getting things done”

Among registered Latino voters nationally

Majority of Latinos and non-Latinos believe Trump has gone too far on deportations

Agreement with Statements: Trump's Actions on Immigration Among registered Americans nationally

PRICE TO PAY:

President Trump's current actions on immigration are justified, and anyone who is here illegally should be deported by any means necessary, with no exceptions. If some people who are not criminals suffer because of it, it's the price to pay to ensure our safety.

GONE TOO FAR:

President Trump talked about deporting the 'worst of the worst' but his actions are going too far and targeting the types of immigrants who strengthen our nation. They're endangering people with legal status, children, families, our economy, and entire communities.

Back to Basics/Abolish ICE vs. Pro-Mass Deportations Statements

(SPLIT A) BACK TO BASICS: It's time to get back to basics on immigration. America has always been a land of opportunity, a place where people who work hard have a chance to build a better life. The government's responsibility is to keep our communities safe, so that hardworking Americans can focus on getting ahead. On immigration, that means focusing enforcement where it belongs: on removing violent criminals and serious threats, while protecting the promise and opportunities that define this country.

(SPLIT B) ABOLISH ICE: It's time to abolish ICE. ICE is supposed to be enforcing immigration law, but instead, is terrorizing people no matter their immigration status, no matter the facts of the law, and no matter the facts of the case. ICE has harmed and killed too many people, including US citizens. We should shut down the agency and replace it with something that will actually keep our communities safe.

VS.

WHITE HOUSE TPs: The immigration situation is out of control and requires a strong enforcement response. We need to secure our border and enforce our nation's laws so that we can finally free Americans from the crushing burden of unchecked illegal immigration. Mass deportations are the only way to free up resources, revitalize opportunity, and restore safety— tangible results that put American citizens first.

A “back to basics” message outperforms an “abolish ICE” message

Key Takeaways and Recommendations

- The best overall messaging frames:
 - Demonstrate the ways Democratic leaders care more about working people while Republican leaders care more about the small wealthy elite.
 - Use specific examples of corruption as proof points (in English) vs using corruption as an overarching frame.
 - Highlight the GOP's focus on the wrong priorities (anything instead of lowering costs).
 - Create permission structures that invite defectors back, including highlighting Trump's broken campaign promises.
- The economy is Latino voters' #1 issue, but the economy isn't just the economy: it's about identity, values, and culture. Focus on demonstrating care and highlight the value of hard work while fighting for lower everyday costs.
- The salience of immigration has dropped, but attitudes towards Trump's approach are still sharply negative. Lift up stories of the human impact of immigration overreach, and offer a proactive vision that brings us "back to basics."
- To demonstrate care and to capture attention, be sure to connect culturally: by both naming Latinos explicitly but not exclusively in English messaging, and broadening Spanish messaging.

Latinos today associate the American Dream with economic stability, safety/freedom

But most describe it as either not possible or harder to achieve than before

“How would you describe the American Dream today?” (Open-Ended)

Among registered voters nationally

In Their Own Words:

“It is basically being able to live here and be left alone. It is about sending kids to college and buying a house. It is to live better than your parents.”

“It is just to survive. You cannot buy a house and raise a family.”

“Dead. Cost of living has become extremely unaffordable. Everyday Americans are working to fill up their gas tanks to continue working towards an American Dream that no longer exists.”

“El sueño americano es un país libre con un libre albedrío, donde todos tenemos derechos y sueños que cumplir. No donde nos sintamos discriminados acosados e incluso perseguidos.”

“It is not real anymore, it is gone. Everyone sees it as unrealistic.”

“The ability to build a meaningful, successful life through opportunity created by hard work, and the belief that you earn your place in the world, not entitled”

“El sueño americano hoy en día mucho trabajo y muy poco dinero y mucha discriminación. No hay valor al trabajo del hispano.”

“The American Dream has become distorted. It is no longer what it used to be, and now it feels like it exists only for the wealthy.”

“The American Dream should mean having your basic necessities met, being able to earn more in proportion to the work you put in, and ensuring a future for the next generations.”

“It is a struggle, and somewhat out of reach because of the economy.”

“Financial independence and entrepreneurship”

“Same as I would yesterday. The idea that anyone who obeys the law and works hard can have a piece of the pie.”

“This is not a dream; it is insomnia.”

“Just people trying to survive”

Most still believe the American Dream is still possible, but plurality agree it's harder than it used to be

Plurality of Latinos see being able to live & retire comfortably, and living in a safe and stable community as absolutely essential to living a “successful life”

Strong majority of Americans want to see changes to ICE through either a reform or abolish approach

Views on ICE

Among registered Americans nationally

ABOLISH: ICE is out of control. No training or accountability measures will be enough to reform it. The agency should be abolished.

REFORM: Immigration enforcement is important, but ICE has gone too far. The agency needs to take measures to prevent further violence and ensure accountability for misconduct.

KEEP AS IS: ICE is doing what needs to be done to enforce our laws and keep our communities safe. The agency should continue to operate as is.
