"This year marked significant growth in operational capacity, volunteer engagement, and community impact. Through a combination of preparedness activities, disaster relief operations, and ongoing support missions, the organization continued to strengthen resilience and deliver critical services nationwide."

Chris Hillis
ITDRC Executive Director

Our volunteer corps continues to be the backbone of our mission; enabling rapid mobilization and sustained support to communities across North America.

Volunteer expertise and service translated into meaningful economic benefit for communities and expanded our reach; strengthening local resilience nationwide.

Strategic deployment of assets supported field operations, connectivity restoration, and community resilience initiatives.

Growth in site management and community coverage reflects expanding national reach and increasing demand for services.
