Colorado State University’s Native American Cultural Center (NACC) and Asian Pacific Islander Cultural Center (APACC) hosted its Fall 2023 All Nations Leadership Retreat. Students spent two nights in Estes Park, Colorado. During this retreat, students had the opportunity to meet and engage in shared community with Native American, Asian Pacific Islander Desi American (APIDA), and Southwest Asian and North African (SWANA) students. The weekend was also filled with fun and meaningful activities about identity and leadership development.

One participant said, “My social identity has a huge impact on what I do everyday, and your social identity influences all thoughts and actions we carry throughout life, and not just even in leadership settings. People will have different strengths depending on their lives and upbringings and beliefs.”

“Leadership does not have to look traditional, and there doesn’t have to be one big leader, but everyone can be a leader in a group individually and in their own unique ways,” said another participant.

By Rachel Wada

Colorado State University’s Native American Cultural Center (NACC) and Asian Pacific Islander Cultural Center (APACC) hosted its Fall 2023 All Nations Leadership Retreat. Students spent two nights in Estes Park, Colorado. During this retreat, students had the opportunity to meet and engage in shared community with Native American, Asian Pacific Islander Desi American (APIDA), and Southwest Asian and North African (SWANA) students. The weekend was also filled with fun and meaningful activities about identity and leadership development.

One participant said, “My social identity has a huge impact on what I do everyday, and your social identity influences all thoughts and actions we carry throughout life, and not just even in leadership settings. People will have different strengths depending on their lives and upbringings and beliefs.”

“Leadership does not have to look traditional, and there doesn’t have to be one big leader, but everyone can be a leader in a group individually and in their own unique ways,” said another participant.
The Duhesa Gallery is currently featuring the artwork of Henry Payer (Ho-Chunk), who works primarily in collage and mixed media. Payer’s art will be displayed from November 2023 to January 2024.

Friday, October 20th
NAHM Powwow Kick-Off
LSC Plaza
11 am - 2 pm
To celebrate Native American Heritage Month, a preview of Saturday’s Annual AISES Powwow will be held with drum groups and dancers in full regalia. Frybread will be sold at the event!

Saturday, October 21st
Colorado State University
Annual AISES Powwow
Powwow 10 am - 10pm
Grand Entry 1 pm & 7 pm
Powwow Feed 5 pm
In an effort to increase awareness of Native cultures at Colorado State University, the American Indian Science & Engineering Society, Native American Cultural Center, Associated Students of Colorado State University, and Ram Events will sponsor the CSU Powwow. Community members and students alike are welcome and encouraged to attend this free event, which will feature Powwow dancers, drum groups, food, vendors, social events and more (Co-sponsored by the Associated Students of Colorado State University and Ram Events).

Thursday, November 9th
Indigenous Kitchen
The Foundry
Please join us at The Foundry dining hall located in Corbett Hall for a special dining experience: "The Indigenous Kitchen" - a series of feasts featuring foods indigenous to North America. The meals will be featured during lunch and dinner on 11/9.

Wednesday, November 8th:
Indigenous Educational Experiences and Survey Research
LSC Longs Peak (Room 302)
12 pm - 1:30 pm
Dr. Jameson Lopez’s describes his previous research through his personal educational stories as a Native American veteran that look at what it means to be a successful Indigenous college student. His most recent research, he further explores the relationships among Kwanamii (warrior spirit), nation-building, and postsecondary education. The research challenges us to look at educational outcomes based on the values of community, and argues that these value-based outcomes are likely better measurements of educational achievement than other mainstream educational achievement metrics.

Lunch will be provided
Please register at the following link: https://zoom.us/meeting/register/tJludururtJMlHtV89KqXK-Ag6iZZ_xFN4qU#registration
(Co-sponsored by Adult Learner Veteran Services)

Tuesday, November 14th:
Harvest Dinner
Roe Bubar and Ron Hall, owners of Arikara Farm worked the farm this year to engage students, family, and the community to support the farm as they grew traditional food and heritage turkey to bring about the Harvest for our Community Dinner. Arikara Farm and NACC are pleased to support this Indigenous Community Dinner.

Please contact Rasa.Humeypumpte@colostate.edu for more information.

The Native American Cultural Center would like to thank and acknowledge the following organizations for their participation:
Roe Bubar and Ron Hall, American Indian Science & Engineering Society, Warner College of Natural Resources, Ram Events, Lory Student Center Arts Program, Associated Students of Colorado State University, Northern Colorado Intertribal Powwow Association, Office of Inclusive Excellence, Native Women’s Circle, The Lory Student Center, Housing and Dining, Jon Iron & Family.

For more information please visit: www.nacc.colostate.edu or call 970-491-1332
Native American Cultural Center on Indigenous Peoples’ Day

The Native American Cultural Center (NACC) celebrated October 9 as Indigenous People’s Day. It is a reclamation of “Columbus Day” to recognize that Native Peoples existed before colonization. Pictured above is CSU President Amy Parsons (second to left) with the NACC staff. (Photo description: A group of people smiling and standing under a tent outside. There is a table of information, buttons and giveaways in front of them and an Indigenous Peoples’ sign behind.)

(Photo description above: A group of people under a tent from NACC, The Pride Center and the Women and Gender Advocacy Center. Photo to the right: Three indigenous women stand outside smiling. They are all wearing colorful beaded jewelry, colorful skirts and jean jackets.)
More NACC Event Highlights with El Centro and Pride Center

NACC celebrated coming Into Queerness day in solidarity with those in the Native community that may identify as “Two-Spirit.” This refers to, “Native American people who are male, female, and sometimes intersexed individuals who combined activities of both men and women with traits unique to their status as two-spirit people.”
More photos from Indigenous Peoples’ Day. Special thanks to Raza Humeyumptewa and Ty Smith.

(Photographings previous page. Top left: A Native American drummer and singer. Top right: A group of Native American women dancing in a circle. Middle left: A pride flag with Native American feathers in the center hangs from a tree. Middle right: A group from The Pride Center are holding flags and standing outside a closet door prop. Bottom left: Tent and table outside on the CSU plaza waiting to greet students. Bottom right: Two Indigenous students smile and hold up the peace sign with their fingers. Above: CSU President Amy Parsons on the far right stands with a group of smiling people from NACC outside. Photos below are a traditional beaded Native American moccasins and a colorful Indigenous-made beaded earring.)
(Photo shows a group of people from the Native American Cultural Center and Asian Pacific Americans Cultural Center sitting on a picnic table outside in an open grass area. Mountains, trees and houses are in the background.)

Now more than ever it’s important to get a flu shot.

Flu shots by appointment only. Call (970) 491-7121 or scan the QR code.

Protect yourself and those around you.
Thanks for stopping by our Homecoming Tent! Check out more pictures on our Facebook page.

Image description: Two people stand in front of the Symposium for Inclusive Excellence backdrop with a dressed up skeleton in between. They are holding signs that say, “Give a little <3” and “Together We Are Stronger” with a heart. They are both wearing hats and jackets.
Welcome Week at CSU: Students Find Friendship, Support

The Asian Pacific American Cultural Center (APACC) welcomed over 60 students and families from the Pacific Islands to CSU during welcome week. (Photo shows a large group of students gathered in front of the APACC office. Some students are sitting on the ground while others are standing.)
MURALS First Year Scholars Picture Day for the 2023-24 Academies was a great success with roughly 60 out of 80 of our Scholars in attendance, as well as several Faculty Guides and Collaborators/Graduate Students. Discover how you can volunteer with MURALS at https://murals.colostate.edu/volunteer/. (Photo shows a large group of students wearing matching shirts outside standing behind the Mary Ontiveros House sign with flowers. The house is in the background on a sunny day.)
October
National Disability Employment Awareness Month
LGBTQ+ History Month
Domestic Violence Awareness Month
Down Syndrome Awareness Month
Filipino American Heritage Month
9 Indigenous People’s Day
9 Latina Equal Pay Day
10 World Mental Health Day
11 National Coming Out Day
18 National Pronoun Day
26 Intersex Awareness Day

November
National Native American/Alaska Native Heritage Month
1 and 2 Dia de Los Muertos
12 Diwali
16 International Day of Tolerance
18 Fall Recess Begins, No Classes Next Week
20 Transgender Day of Remembrance
23 –24 Holiday – University Offices Closed
23 National Day of Mourning (Indigenous holiday)
23 Thanksgiving
27 Classes resume

December
1 World AIDS Day
3 International Day of Persons with Disabilities
10 International Human Rights Day
11–15 Final Examinations
12 Fiesta of Our Lady Guadalupe
15–17 Commencement
16–24 Las Posadas
25 Christmas
25–27: Holiday – University Offices Closed
26th–January 1st: Kwanzaa