Profile

Juan has nine years of experience designing spaces, systems, and experiences that bring strangers into meaningful connection. His background spans architecture, human-centered design, participatory research, and community organizing, giving him a strong ability to manage complex moving parts, and build trust across identities.

Projects

08/2023 – present

Conscious Intervention

Unsaid | New York City

Led production and execution of a large public installation in Washington Square Park. Managed permits, partners, materials, volunteers, setup/breakdown, and live participant engagement for 100+ participants.

The Voicing Booth | Sarajevo, Bosnia & Herzegovina

Ran end-to-end logistics and facilitation for a public installation in a post-conflict context. Coordinated local partners and delivered a structured dialogue experience for 30+ participants across diverse communities.

Masa Method | Pittsburgh & Seattle

Designed and coordinated a repeatable dialogue program that builds trust among strangers. Managed scheduling, cohorts, volunteer onboarding, and session logistics; created processes for feedback and improvement.

Home Care Worker Organizing Campaign | Pennsylvania

Coordinated outreach, volunteer engagement, and cross-political dialogue for a multi-month statewide initiative. Facilitated meetings with state representatives and maintained systems for communication and follow-up.

Claverito Participatory Design Project | Peruvian Amazon

Oversaw logistics, workshops, and stakeholder coordination with displaced riverbank communities. Led field operations and facilitated group sessions to support community-driven improvements.

Speaking & Public Engagements

Ikigai Summit 2024 | Seattle, Washington

Speaker – Conscious Intervention & Human Connection Practices

Invited speaker at a regional summit exploring purpose, community, and well-being. Shared insights from Conscious Intervention and the Masa Method, highlighting how structured dialogue, atmosphere design, and listening-led practices foster trust and belonging across diverse groups.
