PROGRAM UPDATE

POLICY EDUCATION PROGRAM

We've expanded our efforts to support high school civics education. This includes new lesson plans that integrate our full library of policy briefs, giving students a valuable resource for research and learning.

We've launched targeted recruitment on social media and are producing short videos designed for teachers. These efforts are paying off—teacher enrollment has grown to over 500 as of this morning, up from just 150 in January 2025. Reach out to learn more!

360° PERSPECTIVES

3920 hours researching

This month, our team published four new briefs to the library on the topics of Why Are There So Few Moderates in Congress, Authorized Immigration, Refugees and Asylum and International Students and U.S. Education. Focusing in on our 360° Perspective, we've refocused our brief strategy to help comb through all of the data and bring a facts-first perspective on what story the data tells to date.

In the coming briefs you'll continue to see data-driven and facts-first become a core focus for our research team. Better understanding even the most complex topics will empower the American Public to stay informed on essential policy information that impacts life today.
