UNDERSTANDING THE BENEFITS OF SALT THERAPY FOR YOUR BUSINESS

Halotherapy Treats Many Skin Conditions And Offers Benefits To the Lungs

Businesses are more focused than ever before on therapies and services that address lung health. Halotherapy, inhalation of fine salt, is quickly becoming a common topic of new facility builds, remodels, and requests by operators to enhance even the smallest of spaces in medical facilities, spas, yoga and wellness centers, gyms, hotels and more. The use of salt for health benefits has been in practice for thousands of years. It is not surprising that many people are now discovering even more uses for salt therapy.

There are some main reasons that halotherapy has taken such a stronghold for allergies, asthma, sinus issues, bronchitis, COPD, and is now being used to support the impact of long-term COVID-19 symptoms.

It doesn't stop there. In general, it is good for overall lung health, but also addresses a host of skin conditions. For a resort spa setting, it is an ideal treatment to offer because they are dealing with travelers who have been in crowds, on various transportation, and are usually dealing with allergy-inducing environments that they are not used to.

Kalahari Resorts - Round Rock, Texas

“Halotherapy has taken such a stronghold for allergies, asthma, sinus issues, bronchitis, COPD, and is now being used to support the impact of long-term COVID-19 symptoms.”

From an operations standpoint, during a time when staffing may be limited or when considering the cost of commissions and wages, the unit and treatment usually work on their own without a technician. Salt is also a very low-cost product keeping the operational supplies cost down, too. For versatility in equipment and usage, it's a playground for spa-lovers, gym members, hotel guests, patients and many others. Options are a dedicated salt room, a multi-use salt room where other modalities such as yoga, massage therapy, meditation, acupuncture, reiki, or IV therapy are performed, or an AERO Salt Booth™.

There are also revenue benefits. Adding this amenity allows an increase in daily use rates while increasing experiential moments for the guests. It also gives guests better value for the money. Resorts can also build it in as an upgrade to a day spa experience or add halotherapy as a stand-alone treatment. There are so many applications to generate a very passive revenue in the spa while creating a healthier experience for the guest. Halotherapy continues to grow and at some point, may just become as common as a steam room and sauna are to us today.

TOP 5 REASONS TO ADD A SALT ROOM TO YOUR FACILITY

Facilities need to prepare for a world where people are more concerned with their respiratory health than ever before - because that time is now.

Strengthening immunity, respiratory wellness, and self-care are on everyone's minds these days. As the latest wave of COVID-19 cases sweeps across the world, people are looking for new ways to treat their respiratory issues.

Do you want to offer more value to your existing customers and attract some new ones? How about increasing your revenue without increasing your labor costs?

Then a salt room will be a great addition to your business. Whether you own a hotel, resort, gym, wellness, medical, senior living, salon, spa, or another type of facility, you can easily add a salt room as a complement to your existing menu of services.

What is Salt Therapy?

Also known as halotherapy, salt therapy involves inhaling salt air that is emitted by halogenerators. This alternative treatment can be offered in the form of salt rooms, sometimes known as salt caves (up to 450 square feet), or AERO Salt Booths™ (all that's needed is a 4' x 4' space).

Four Seasons - Austin, Texas

As the fastest growing service in the spa industry, salt therapy can aid in:

- ✓ Cleansing the Respiratory System
- ✓ Improving Lung Function
- ✓ Boosting the Immune System
- ✓ Enhancing Mental Wellness

Although this practice is still relatively new to North America, it has been widely used throughout Europe for decades and its origins date back to medieval times.

Adding Salt Therapy Makes Sense for Your Business

Many industries are experiencing rapid growth as new stand-alone salt facilities are opened, and existing spa businesses and resorts add salt rooms as amenities. In the last 10 years, the number of salt rooms in the US has grown from a dozen in 2012 to thousands today. SALT Chamber alone has worked on over 3,600 salt therapy projects around the world.

This uptick in new salt rooms comes just as the importance of hygiene and respiratory health is at an all-time high.

Why Add a Salt Room to Your Facility?

Salt therapy is one of the fastest-growing in many industries. It can be a lucrative addition to your holistic business, and a great way to improve your clients' health.

Here are some reasons you should seriously consider adding a Salt Therapy Room to your new or existing facility:

- ✓ Investment is minimal with a highly accelerated return on investment
- ✓ Easy to integrate into existing business and maintain
- ✓ A touchless therapy service
- ✓ Integrates easily with current service offerings
- ✓ Non-competitive growth market

See page 20-21 for more details on prospective revenue and profits.

PALM Health - St. Louis, Missouri

There are many more reasons to consider incorporating a salt room into your facility, but we'll focus on these in this article.

Aqua Spa Float Center and Wellness Boutique - Oswego, New York

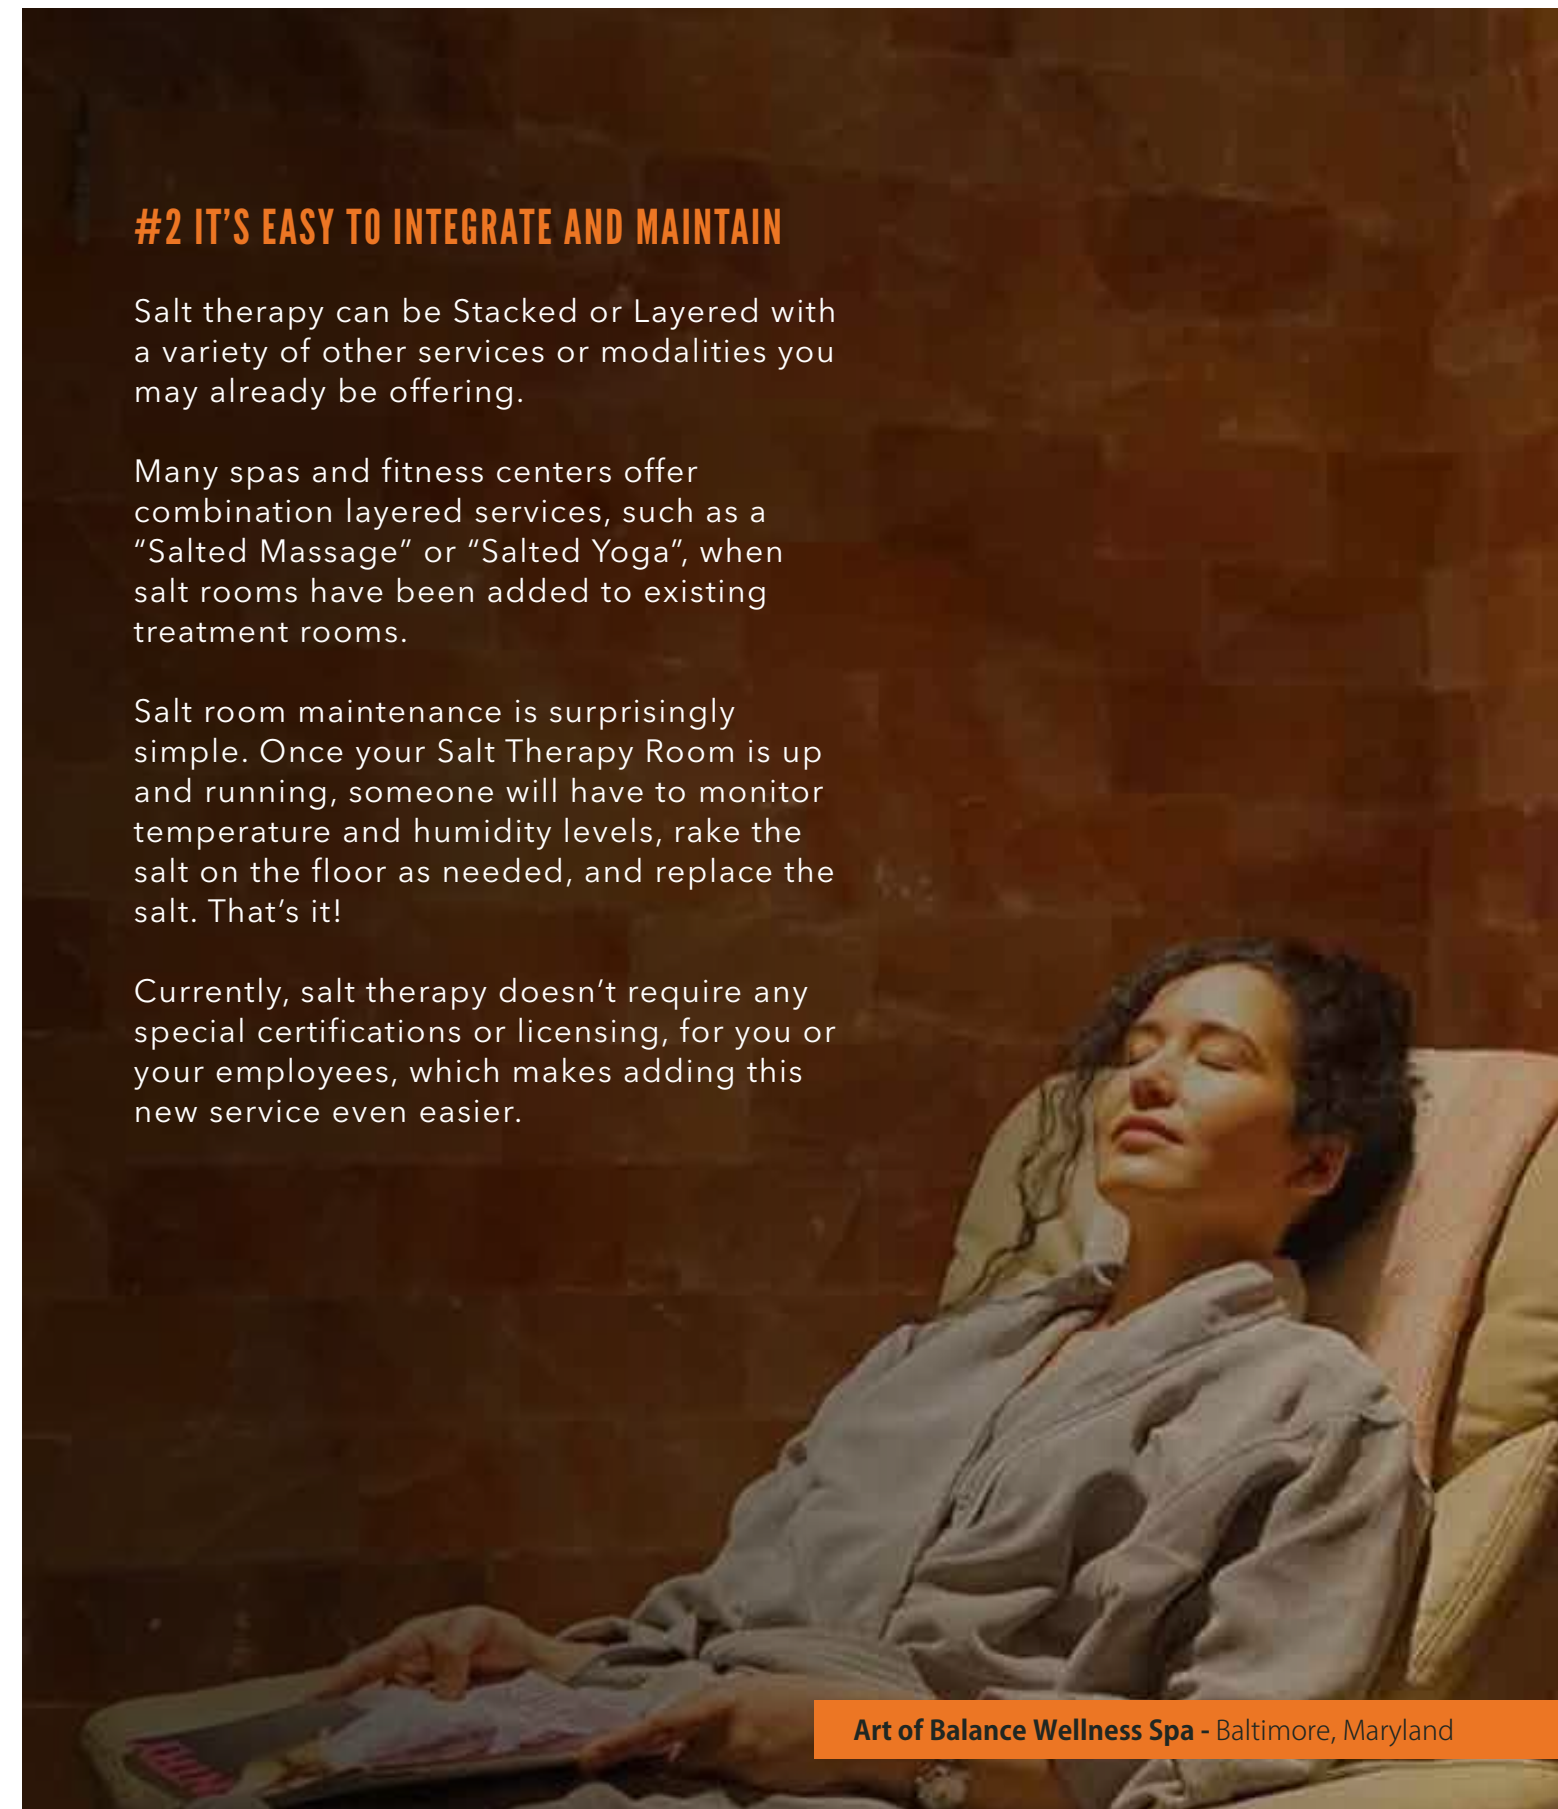

#1 MINIMAL INVESTMENT AND ONGOING COSTS EQUAL HIGH ROI

Adding a salt room to your facility affects your overhead only minimally. Since this is a touchless service, you won't have to hire additional labor.

Once the salt room is ready to use, all that's needed is salt to add to the halogenerator, which costs very little per session. The power required to run the equipment is also very low.

You'll be able to charge from $15 to $60 per session depending on various factors. Given that the cost per session comes out to just a few dollars (including consumables), you can realize profit margins of nearly 300% annually.

Due to its accelerated return on investment, your Salt Therapy Room could pay for itself in as little as six months.

#2 IT'S EASY TO INTEGRATE AND MAINTAIN

Salt therapy can be Stacked or Layered with a variety of other services or modalities you may already be offering.

Many spas and fitness centers offer combination layered services, such as a "Salted Massage" or "Salted Yoga", when salt rooms have been added to existing treatment rooms.

Salt room maintenance is surprisingly simple. Once your Salt Therapy Room is up and running, someone will have to monitor temperature and humidity levels, rake the salt on the floor as needed, and replace the salt. That's it!

Currently, salt therapy doesn't require any special certifications or licensing, for you or your employees, which makes adding this new service even easier.

Art of Balance Wellness Spa - Baltimore, Maryland

#3 IT'S TOUCHLESS THERAPY

More and more people are willing to try new "touch-free" treatments. Many businesses across industries are racing to keep up with demand.

Touchless services can often be provided without the need for a therapist or instructor. From color therapy and music therapy to zero-gravity recliners and salt rooms, Americans are trying new services and treatments to care for their physical and mental health.

Simple and easy to set up, a Salt Therapy Room can provide a new touchless therapy service to offer your clients and a new revenue stream for your facility.

Better Bodies - Memphis, Tennessee

#4 IT'S EASY TO MARKET TO CLIENTS

Marketing salt therapy as a new service offering to clients is relatively easy. As we discussed earlier in this post, salt therapy can be paired with current services your spa is already offering. Promoting salt therapy can be as simple as communicating with your current and potential clients that you now offer "an enhanced multisensory wellness experience."

Additionally, salt therapy treatments are affordable to nearly any budget, and they're convenient, allowing clients to choose the session length that works for their schedule.

Fahrenheit Body Spas - Basalt, Colorado

#5 IT'S A NON-COMPETITIVE GROWTH MARKET

Earlier we touched on how salt therapy has been trending up in the US over the last decade. Part of the reason business owners have jumped on the halotherapy bandwagon is because they see how quickly they can recoup their initial investment.

Salt therapy has a very wide potential group of users due to the number of ailments it can address. And unlike many other businesses that have been devastated as a result of the pandemic, the current concerns with respiratory health have actually caused salt therapy to be in higher demand.

The salt therapy industry focuses on three main market segments: People with respiratory conditions (approximately 100 million people with asthma, COPD, and allergies)

- ▶ People with skin conditions (approximately 42.5 million people with psoriasis or eczema)
- ▶ Spa and wellness, fitness, and athletics
- ▶ People who fall into the third market segment tend to have more discretionary income and may view salt therapy as an alternative and complementary health care option.

Bottom Line

As the concern for self-care, respiratory wellness, and skin health rises, spas just like yours are adding salt therapy. The fastest-growing service in the spa industry is delivering high-quality, touchless hygienic treatments that are customizable and require minimal labor.

SALT Chamber is the industry leader in salt therapy products, equipment, and décor.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST TO BUILD A SALT ROOM?

Expanding your facility's services by adding salt therapy can not only bring therapeutic benefits to your clients, but it can also help your spa generate more revenue as well.

How much does it all cost? Keep reading to find out!

Peppermill Resort - Reno, Nevada

Generate More Revenue For Your Facility With A Salt Room

Adding salt therapy to your spa is relatively simple. Almost any closed room can be converted into a salt room.

There are some basic requirements though:

- ▶ The room needs a fixed ceiling
- ▶ There should be adequate ventilation
- ▶ Proper placement of the halogenerator
- ▶ The fee you can charge per session can range from $25 to $55, based on the size of your space and the number of clients you can handle.

As a health benefit, halotherapy is easy to market to clients. It's convenient and affordable for any budget. Clients can spend less than $50 for a quick session on their lunch break or before a night out. It can also make a great add-on for before or after a massage, or as part of a special package paired with other services.

Costs of Building a Salt Room

As the salt therapy industry continues to grow, more and more people are wanting to know how they can get started or add salt therapy to their existing spa.

And with that interest, people also ask... how much does it cost?

The simple answer to that question is... it depends.

There are various concepts for providing salt therapy at your facility.

Options are a dedicated salt room, a multi-use salt room where other modalities such as yoga, massage therapy, meditation, acupuncture, reiki, or IV therapy are performed, or an AERO Salt Booth®.

The range to build a salt room is $4,995-$18,995+. This greatly depends on the space and technology required. For example, a smaller single room conversion will cost much less than a multiroom salt room.

855-LUV-SALT

White Orchid Spa - Vero Beach, Florida

Salt Room Projects

There are three components to a proper salt room:

1. The Halogenerator (the primary equipment that crushes, grinds, and disperses pure sodium chloride into the room).
2. Room modifications, technical requirements, (HVAC), and environmental concerns.
3. Salt Décor (the largest variable expense) and furnishings.

Salt rooms can range from small rooms (up to 150 sq. ft.) to larger relaxation and multi-purpose rooms (up to 450 sq. ft.).

The size of the room will determine which halogenerator is best, as well as salt décor quantity and other furnishings such as seating, lighting, music, etc.

TURN SALT INTO REVENUE

How Salt Adds Over $100,000 Per Year To Your Bottom Line With Profitability in as Little as 2-4 Months

Business owners are getting salted with additional monthly revenue and incorporating salt therapy as a profit center.

While your initial investment may vary, depending on the options you choose for your salt services, the revenue and profit numbers don't lie.

When it comes to square footage, simply installing a plug-and-play AERO Salt Booth™ takes as little as a 4' x 4' space. It's a 10-minute touchless service that requires minimum labor and your consumption of salt costs just pennies a day.

Offering sessions at just $25 per session will generate an additional $140,000.00 per year with just 16 sessions per day.

Offering 45-minute sessions in a salt room at $45 per session at the same 16 sessions per day will generate an additional $262,800.00 per year.

In many cases, you can combine salt therapy with other services you already offer and build premium versions that can add $45 or more per session utilizing space that's already in use.

See page 20-21 for more details on prospective revenue and profits.

- ▶ Attract new customers

THE REAL SECRET OF SALT SUCCESS: The Halogenerator

The heart and soul that breathes success to an AERO Salt Booth™ or salt room concept starts with the halogenerator. This is the machine that intakes air, grinds and crushes pure grade sodium chloride (salt) into micron-sized salt particles, and then disperses that as dry salt aerosol via a fan through an opening into your AERO Salt Booth™ or salt therapy room. Once the halogenerator is installed, all you have to do is put salt into the device and press start.

This is precision equipment that will allow you to provide programmable halotherapy treatment for respiratory and skin conditions.

Kramer Wellness - Vero Beach, Florida

There is no Salt Therapy without a Halogenerator!

According to the Salt Therapy Association (STA), there are some facilities that claim they offer halotherapy, but they do not have a halogenerator. If there is no halogenerator, there is no halotherapy. They may have salt as a décor feature on the walls and floors, however, the only way dry salt therapy can be provided is with dry salt being dispersed into a salt room or AERO Salt Booth™.

While some claim that heated Himalayan salt can be beneficial in an environment by releasing negative ions and hygroscopically purifying the air, the STA has found this to be false and "mythinformation". Those types of facilities DO NOT provide any benefits of halotherapy.

The Salt Works & Spa - Biddeford, Maine

Not All Halogenerators are Created Equal

SALT FX™ halogenerators consistently provide halotherapy standards of 5 to 25 mg of sodium chloride per cubic meter ranging in particle size from 2 to 5 microns.

Only SALT FX™ halogenerators can provide over 90% of salt particles that are 2 microns or smaller (the smaller the salt particle the deeper it can penetrate the respiratory system and skin for better results). This is because SALT FX™ halogenerators are made with special polymer feeders and grinder components and medical-grade stainless steel grinder blades and housing.

The SALT FX™ halogenerators are manufactured in a recognized and certified medical device facility that meets the highest quality international standards achieving the prestigious ISO 9001, 14001, and 13485 certifications.

Due to the other equipment manufactured at the facility, specific quality standards and testing must be in compliance. No other halogenerator manufactured meets these standards.

SALT FX™ halogenerators are the only halogenerators that use industrial-strength magnets for connecting the major components to provide simple and ease of maintenance and cleaning.

PLUS our halogenerators are standard with 9 programmable settings for various salt therapy sessions with thousands of possibilities for controlling the length of sessions, salt concentrations, and more.

Simply put: you can invest in a halogenerator... or you can invest in the SALT FX™ and know that you're choosing the best tool for the service you want to offer.

HIMALAYAN SALT BRICKS AND TILES

Our Himalayan Salt Bricks and Tiles are not your typical salt bricks. Our bricks go through stringent quality production procedures both from the mines in Pakistan and here at our production facility to ensure architectural standards are met for structure, compliance, consistency of product, and color variations. This ensures that when you are on the job installing the brick system, there is little to no extra work involved with cutting, trimming, and sizing the bricks.

We have proprietary design methods for installing these bricks that eliminate the need for mortar or permanent construction. We also have developed systems to eliminate shadowing effects and hot spots from backlighting. AND you can use these bricks as flooring, similar to pavers!
