Sasha is the Legal Fellow for Janove PLLC. She assists attorneys on class action and arbitration proceedings.

Prior to joining Janove, Sasha attended Yale College where she graduated with a BA in political science, receiving distinction in the major and magna cum laude honors. During her time at Yale, she served as an editorial intern for the Yale Law Journal and an online editor for the Yale Undergraduate Law Journal. Sasha also interned at the Brennan Center for Justice, where they published her article about the history of anti-dueling provisions in state constitutions.

Outside of work, Sasha enjoys trying new restaurants, playing basketball, and keeping up with national politics.
