CLASSICAL CORNER

Parent Engagement Series-Place Setting

Engagement begins when parents believe in the mission – and then take it home. Classical Christian education does not treat learning as mere data transfer or vocational training. It is, as Chesterton says, the transfer of a way of life. It invites students into wisdom, trains them in attention, and seeks to turn their loves toward what is true, good, and beautiful. It passes on a cultural inheritance – what we often call the Great Tradition.

Think of it as a “feast.” Feasting is about formation. Three elements to feasting are: invitation, remembrance, and celebration.
