CLASSICAL CORNER

Classical Stories Series-by Jonathan Pageau

Q: A defining principle of classical Christian education is ad fontes-going back to the (original) sources. Why do you think fairy tales are such an important source?

A: They escape some of the classical and modern errors about what is true, which is that we are obsessed with authors, and we're kind of obsessed with the idea of the personal genius. What's great about the fairy tales is they don't really have authors. They are in some ways tales that have sprung from very ancient, ancient memories-oral tales that have been told generation to generation. And so for that reason, they actually contain the pattern of human attention in a way that very few other stories do, maybe next to Scripture. They are probably some of the deepest stories we have because by process of refinement and iteration they would be retold and remembered and retold and remembered.

PLEASE PRAY FOR:

- The safety and health of our students and staff.
- The Irwin, Roller, and Hudson families.
- Those who are struggling with feelings of loneliness as the holidays approach.

PRAISE GOD FOR:

- Living in a place where we can experience all four seasons!
- A nice long weekend.
- His promises! They never fail!

The temps are getting colder! Students have plenty of room in their lockers and cubbies for extra shoes, hats, coats, and gloves. Please be sure to have your student prepared to go outside for recesses. Also, please be sure to label your student's items.

MANNER OF THE WEEK

"Look for opportunities to include others in conversation or activities."

"So we built the wall. And all the wall was joined together to half its height, for the people had a mind to work."-Nehemiah 4:6
