Educational Disclaimer

This educational program is provided for training and informational purposes only. The content presented reflects current clinical practices, research, and instructor experience within the field of aesthetic medicine and regenerative aesthetics.

Participation in this course does not grant licensure, certification to practice medicine, or authorization to perform medical procedures beyond the scope permitted by the participant's professional license and governing regulatory body. All participants are responsible for practicing within their individual scope of practice and in accordance with applicable state, federal, and institutional regulations.

Clinical techniques and treatment approaches discussed during this training may include both FDA-approved and off-label uses of medical products and devices. Off-label use is common in aesthetic medicine and should only be performed by appropriately licensed medical professionals exercising independent clinical judgment.

Hands-on participation, if applicable, is subject to verification of appropriate licensure and compliance with local medical regulations. The instructor, hosting Center of Excellence, and the Aesthetic National Institute (ANI) assume no responsibility for clinical outcomes resulting from the application of techniques taught in this course.

All treatment decisions must be based on the provider's clinical assessment, patient needs, and professional judgment.
