IPA Due Diligence Symposiums

IPA's Due Diligence Symposiums (DDS) are a key feature of IPA's annual conferences, designed to facilitate structured, small-group meetings between leading Asset Managers and senior Distribution Partner decision-makers.

Asset Managers benefit from dedicated time in a private, boardroom-style setting to present their strategies, offerings and firm insights, while Distribution Partners gain access to a select group of alternative investment sponsors for efficient, in-depth product evaluation.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

What is the format of the Due Diligence Symposium?

Each participating Asset Manager is assigned a private, dedicated conference room, arranged in a boardroom style and equipped with a coffee bar and refreshments station to create a comfortable and professional environment. Representatives from various Distribution Partner firms are organized into small groups of approximately 5 to 7 individuals and rotate through these rooms in 30-minute intervals throughout the conference.

DDS meetings are intentionally scheduled to avoid overlap with other conference programming, ensuring focused and uninterrupted time for due diligence discussions. This format allows Distribution Partners to explore a wide range of offerings, engage in meaningful dialogue, and evaluate each Asset Manager's strategies and capabilities in a confidential, small-group setting. Sessions are structured to promote interactive discussions rather than one-way presentations.

Distribution Partners are expected to attend all scheduled DDS sessions. Asset Managers, meanwhile, have continuous access to their assigned rooms throughout the conference and may use them during non-DDS times for one-on-one meetings or follow-up conversations. Asset Managers may customize their space to suit their preferred approach, whether for formal presentations, informal conversations, or the use of audiovisual materials and handouts. Breaks are built into the schedule to allow participants to regroup and prepare for their next meeting. Discussion topics may include firm overviews, current offerings, product updates and upcoming initiatives. IPA continuously builds relationships with new Distribution Partners to ensure a diverse and robust group at each DDS.

Who are IPA's Distribution Partner members?

IPA's Distribution Partners consist of key decision-makers from wire houses, independent broker-dealers, family offices, and registered investment advisors (RIAs). These senior professionals are responsible for product approval and conducting due diligence on new and existing alternative investments for their respective platforms.

What are the expectations for Asset Managers?

Prior to the symposium, IPA will host a virtual meeting with Asset Managers to review the attending Distribution Partners, the schedule, each Asset Manager's due diligence appointments, best practices and on-site logistical details, including Distribution Partner sign-in requirements. Asset Manager team members attending the conference are requested to participate in this virtual meeting to ensure everyone is fully prepared and aligned.

What are the expectations for Distribution Partners?

Distribution Partners must register for the DDS and are expected to attend all scheduled sessions. On-site, they are required to sign into each meeting to confirm participation. In cases where an unavoidable conflict arises, prior approval from IPA is requested. If a session is missed, IPA will coordinate a follow-up meeting with the relevant Asset Manager to ensure the engagement is still fulfilled.

To help ensure a productive experience, IPA hosts a virtual orientation with all participating Distribution Partners prior to the DDS. This session covers the list of attending Asset Managers, the meeting schedule, each Distribution Partner's individual appointments, and important on-site logistics.

What are the benefits of participating in IPA's Due Diligence Symposium?

Participating in IPA's DDS offers both Asset Managers and Distribution Partners the opportunity to connect with a broad and diverse network in a single setting. For Distribution Partners, it provides an efficient, comprehensive view of product offerings to support well-informed platform decisions. For Asset Managers, it streamlines outreach by consolidating conversations that might otherwise require numerous individual meetings throughout the year.

The feedback from participants underscores the value of IPA's DDS in driving networking opportunities among peers as well as productive, actionable discussions. IPA's DDS is seen as a unique platform within the alternative investment landscape, ensuring that Distribution Partners and Asset Managers alike can foster connections that advance the industry and support each organization's growth.

Sponsoring to Participate in the DDS

Participation in IPA’s DDS is available to Asset Managers through sponsorship at any of IPA’s annual conferences.*^{xq} The number of sponsorship opportunities is limited for each event to ensure high-quality engagement and interaction.
