Cartagena de Indias, September 4, 2026. Mineros S.A. was recognized in the most recent edition of Brújula Minera 2026 as the top gold company in the country's reputation ranking and third in the sector's overall ranking.

The results, presented during the National Mining Congress organized by the Colombian Mining Association (ACM), reflect the organization's rise in key categories. In the evaluation conducted by sector executives, Mineros S.A. climbed to third place for its management and good practices. Likewise, in the industry workers category, the company moved from eighth to third place, reaffirming its commitment to employee wellbeing and organizational culture.

"Being recognized as the leading gold mining company in reputation validates the talent of our people and the strength of our business vision. At Mineros, we understand that trust is built through actions. This result in Brújula Minera 2026 drives us to keep transforming the industry, building operations that coexist harmoniously with the environment and generate real prosperity in the territories where we operate," said Daniel Henao, CEO of Mineros S.A.

The study, conducted by Jaime Arteaga & Asociados and the Centro Nacional de Consultoría, also reveals a positive outlook toward the industry: 70% of Colombians recognize the country's mining tradition, 71% acknowledge the need for its products in daily life, and 86% support its harmonious coexistence with activities such as tourism and agriculture.

The research also showed an increase in institutional trust for 2026, as 53% of government authorities endorse companies' environmental commitment (five percentage points more than in 2025), and nearly seven in ten regulatory and oversight officials recognize companies' respect for human rights.

For Mineros S.A., these achievements strengthen its institutional strategy and further its purpose of generating wellbeing in the communities where it operates.
