MOTIVATIONAL INTERVIEWING

Welcomed Participants: Health Professionals and Community Members

Motivational Interviewing (MI) is an evidenced-based practice that centers on the motivational processes within the individual that facilitate change. These skills used in numerous settings when someone is struggling with a behavior change, decision fatigue, or exploring ambivalence.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- Describe three communication styles and common communication "roadblocks".
- Review the components of the "Spirit" of Motivational Interviewing.
- Identify core Motivational Interviewing skills to assist with positive communication.
- Get an introduction to the "OARS (Open questions, Affirmation, Reflective listening, and Summary reflections) technique".
