The book "Theorizing a New Agenda for Architecture: An Anthology of Architectural Theory" gathers the most influential essays on architectural theory from the past thirty years. This period saw a significant shift in the field, with many different and radical viewpoints emerging. The anthology includes various paradigms such as postmodernism, phenomenology, semiotics, poststructuralism, deconstruction, and feminism. Kate Nesbitt has compiled these essays into a comprehensive resource that is invaluable for professors, students, practitioners, and the general public. It provides an overview, thematic structure, and critical introductions to each essay. The list of authors featured in "Theorizing a New Agenda" reads like a "Who's Who" of contemporary architectural thought, with notable figures such as Tadao Ando, Jacques Derrida, Rem Koolhaas, and Robert Venturi contributing to the anthology. A comprehensive list of references and author notes is provided for a group of prominent architects and theorists, including Rubi, Bernard Tschumi, Robert Venturi and Denise Scott Brown, and Anthony Vidler.
