

Continue

Pakistani leaked xxx

Sajal Malik, a popular Pakistani TikTok sensation, is at the center of a controversy after an alleged explicit video featuring her surfaced online. The internet was quick to react, with trolls and critics sharing memes and spreading hate on social media. However, Sajal has now spoken out, denying that the video is hers and begging the public not to attach her name to it. According to insiders, Sajal believes this is a calculated move to ruin her reputation and silence her voice in the digital world. She has filed a formal complaint with the Federal Investigation Agency (FIA), demanding a deep-dive into the scandal and the source behind the leak. Sajal's fans are rallying behind her, demanding justice and calling out the culture of shaming women online. This incident highlights the prevalence of fake MMS dramas in South Asia's digital scene, as seen in previous cases involving influencers like Imsha Rehman and Minahil Malik. The trend of private videos of Pakistani actresses and influencers being leaked online continues, with Sajal Malik becoming the latest victim. This issue has affected several well-known figures from Pakistan before her. Recently, Minahil Malik and TikTokker Imsha Rehman were also victims of this invasion of privacy. In response to having her video leaked, Minahil Malik took legal action by filing a case with the Federal Investigation Agency (FIA). She stated that the videos were fabricated and assured that the responsible individual would be arrested soon. Following the incident, Minahil Malik decided to quit social media. Similarly, Imsha Rehman deactivated her social media accounts after her own private video was leaked online.